Prison Guard Killed

ROME (AP) — Two men and a woman shot and killed a prison guard in the northeastern city of Udine and a Rome magistrate filed murder and kidnapping charges against three more alleged members of the Red Brigades guerrilla band.

Police said no group claimed responsibility for the killing immediately, but it was assumed to be the work of the Red Brigades or another ultra-leftist terrorist organization.

The victim was Sgt. Antonio Santoro, 52, head of the guards in Udine prison. Police said the three killers approached him as he left home for the prison, shot him at close range and escaped in two cars.

Those accused today of helping six others kill former Premier Aldo Moro were Maria Pirri Ardizzone, Prospero Gallinari and Corradm Alunni.

Today's legal development came on the heels of charges laid Monday against six Moro case suspects, five of whom are in custody and a sixth is still at large.

More Jobs In City

The number of jobs available in Victoria is increasing despite pockets of disaster, Canada Manpower assistant manager Doug Yearwood said today.

He said about 1,500 jobs will be available through Canada Manpower this month, up from 600 during the winter months and a slight increase over the previous June.

The new jobs are mainly in the service and tourist industries, he said, and they are needed in view of recent troubles, including:

—The layoff of several thousand regional loggers, due to forest fire hazard;

—The loss of 96 jobs at James Island explosives plant;

—The layoff of 40 of 80 employees in an excavating firm.

Yearwood said these losses, while severe, will be more than covered by increased employment in other sectors.

Hiring is up for the tourist industry and for provincial government employment.

Yearwood said a survey of Victoria stores, conducted by Canada Manpower information director Dan Bowes, showed retail sales in May were up 10 per cent from the same month one year ago.

"This is higher than the rate of inflation and shows the strength of the local economy."

During May, Yarrows shipyard employed 425 people and in June the total is expected to be about the same.

Construction remains weak and unemployment has risen to almost 40 per cent, from 35 per cent one month ago, for those in the building trades.

Construction is expected to pick up once a labor contract is signed. Companies tend to avoid tendering until they know what the new labor rates will be.

Employment remains near capacity at local sawmills.

Victoria's Beer Stock Dwindles

Supplies of beer in Greater Victoria are dwindling as efforts continued to prevent a lockout of all B.C. brewery workers.

Representatives of the breweries and the Canadian Union of Brewery, Flour, Cereal, Soft Drink, and Distillery Workers resumed informal meetings with a B.C. Labor Relations Board panel at 9 a.m. today. The meetings began Monday night.

The recently-formed Brewery Employers Labor Relations Association (BELRA) served 72-hour lockout notice Saturday on all Carling O'Keefe, Labatts and Molson's employees. Such a lockout could have begun as early as 11 a.m. today.

One Labatt's spokesman said the fact that the two sides are still meeting is encouraging and could mean negotiations will resume.

The union claims that the lockout notice is illegal because BELRA is not yet an accredited group under B.C. labor law.

The main issue in the dispute is the union's refusal to bargain jointly with the breweries.

About 260 Carling O'Keefe employees in Vancouver have been on strike for about two weeks.

Meanwhile, the threat of a brewery industry shutdown plus the hot weather has led to a run on beer at B.C. liquor stores.

A check with Greater Victoria stores today showed that all Canadian beer was sold out Monday and only a limited supply had come in today.

Most area pubs said they could last until Thursday or the weekend with their current supply of draught beer and some said they would stay open until some time next week selling bottled beer.

One pub, the Tally Ho, switched from selling Carling O'Keefe to Labatt's in order to remain open.

Calif. Tax-Cut Vote Looks Like Shoo-in

Times News Services

LOS ANGELES — Voters were turning out in heavy numbers today as pre-election polls pointed toward victory today for Proposition 13, the ballot initiative that would cut the average property tax bill by more than half.

Proposition 13 is strongly supported by homeowners, because it would slash the average annual property tax bill to $600 from $1,400.

In traditionally liberal San Francisco, some precincts asked for additional voting machines while in vote-heavy Los Angeles early balloting ran 2½ times heavier than during the last gubernatorial primary.

A victory for Proposition 13, would also mean enormous tax savings for some of California's biggest landowners, the public utilities. Three companies alone — Pacific Telephone, Pacific Gas and Electric and Southern California Edision — would get a combined tax cut of $280 million.

But because the tax cut would reduce property tax revenue for cities, counties and schools to $5 billion annually from $12 billion, the issue has been criticized by many labor and business leaders.

Among its opponents is Gov. Edmund Brown, running against token opposition in a nine-candidate Democratic governorship primary field. Brown has endorsed Proposition 8, a more-moderate tax-cut plan.

The initiative would limit annual property taxes to one per cent of market value. The average California homeowner's property currently is valued at $60,000, and annual property taxes now range from less than one per cent to almost three per cent.

The measure — an amendment to the state constitution — also would roll back assessments to 1975 figures and then would allow increases of no more than two per cent a year, except when property is sold.

If Propositions 8 and 13 are both approved, Proposition 13 would become effective on July 1.

Howard Jarvis, a 75-year-old tax crusader who led a drive that collected 1.5 million voters' signatures to put the initiative on the ballot, says the issue is more than just cutting taxes.

He said it is a message to politicians and bureaucrats who ignore pleas from voters for a limit on government programs and continue to increase spending and services.

One Super Lottery Proposed

REGINA (CP) — A proposal to conduct a single lottery in Canada and eliminate competition among lotteries will be discussed at a meeting of provincial ministers responsible for lotteries Wednesday and at a federal-provincial meeting Thursday, it was announced today.

Both meetings will be held here.

Ned Shillington, Saskatchewan's culture and youth minister, said there is concern about proliferation of the types of lotteries and the amount of money being spent on advertising, duplication of organization and the possible duplication of benefits.

With only one lottery, competition would be eliminated and there could be a mutually-established national and provincial purpose for lottery proceeds, Shillington said.

Quebec 'Golden Age' Vision

QUEBEC (CP) — A vision of a "golden age" for Quebec cultures was outlined in a white paper tabled today in the legislature by Camille Laurin, originator of last year's sweeping language legislation.

The paper says that federal-government interventions, backed by considerable resources, make it difficult to implement a coherent cultural policy here, and threaten to reduce Quebec's Franch culture to the level of a "provincialized" oddity.

Yet in the interests of coherence and the affirmation of an authentic, as opposed to a borrowed culture, the jurisdiction should be Quebec's alone.

"What do we expect of the Quebec of tomorrow?" the paper asks, and then responds: "That it take over all responsibility—all the means—to assure each Quebecer 'bread and books,' the vital material minimum and the vital cultural minimum.

"The dignity and welfare of Quebecers require a refusal to live in a kept society, which was the ideal of 'viable federalism'."

"Viable federalism" was a slogan of the previous Liberal government of Quebec.

Financial, constitutional and social constraints make the project a long-term one, the paper acknowledges. Rather than outlining specific legislation, the document proposes broad policies to be discussed and implemented over the next two years.

"There is no point in sitting back while waiting for the province to become a country," the white paper says.

Two of the measures bound to raise hackles in Ottawa are a demand that the federal government turn over to Quebec all the parks, historical sites and other cultural artifacts it controls in the province, and Quebec's plans to pass a copyright law, traditionally a federal preserve.

The two-volume document of some 80,000 words—more of an artist's sketch of the future than a hard-edged blueprint—proposes a wealth of studies, campaigns of education and consultation.

Heat Forces Layoffs In Woods

Close to 2,000 loggers employed by two major forest companies on Vancouver Island have been laid off because of the hot, dry weather.

That number includes about 1,200 MacMillan Bloedel employees and roughly 600 workers and contractors employed by Crown Zellerbach.

B.C. Forest Products has not yet closed down any of its operations.

"We are down until further notice," a Crown Zellerbach spokesman said.

"The situation is going to have to change."

Forest companies are hopeful the hot spell will break by the weekend to permit woods operations to resume. Long-range forecasts, however, predict continuing sunny weather.

MacBlo has six divisions down — Shawnigan Lake, Chemainus, Northwest Bay, Menzies Bay, Kelsey Bay and Eve River.

Eight others, including the Queen Charlottes operation and the division at Stillwater, near Powell River, are operating on an early shift basis.

The employees report for work at 5 a.m., two hours earlier than usual.

Crown Zellerbach has closed its Ladysmith, Courtenay and Nitinat divisions and most of the Nanaimo Lakes operation.

The company still has some logging operations going north of Campbell River.

Pacific Logging has also closed its Sooke and Cowichan Lake logging operations, laying off about 150 men.

DERBY DAZE HIT HAINES

HAINES, Alaska (AP) — The American hosts of this community's annual salmon derby say it was one of the best ever — until their Canadian neighbors were tossed out.

The Canadians, who came from just across the border in the Yukon Territory and British Columbia, were ordered out of the derby as a result of the termination of a U.S.-Canadian fishing treaty.

"My God, they're our neighbors," said Dave Olerud, derby chairman. "The damage created internationally probably wasn't as serious as the damage created locally."

Wendy Hyde, a city hall spokesman, said "this is terrible for Haines since the Canadians make up most of the tourists in the city."

The U.S. Coast Guard said that from 150 to 200 Canadians had been participating until they were evicted on the last day of the event.

Olerud said the derby had been "fantastic this year. The fish were superior. The largest was 52 pounds." The winner got $1,000.

It's Friendly Fish War

Times News Services

The Canadian-U.S. fishing war is erupting not with a bang but a pfft.

As the dispute enters its second day today, neither government reports arresting any fishermen. No angry words have been exchanged. No meetings have been called to attempt to resolve the conflict.

Spokesmen for both countries said fishermen hoisted their nets and sailed for home hours before the Monday noon deadline after which U.S. and Canadian fishermen were forbidden to fish within each other's 200 miles of territorial waters, under threat of arrest.

Canadian fisheries spokesman in Vancouver Ian Todd said fisheries patrol boats found no U.S. fishboats in Canadian waters Monday.

"As far as I know, our area is free of American fishing vessels," Todd said.

The only incident in Canadian waters occurred when a patrol boat was called to assist an American trawler having difficulty with its fishing equipment.

A U.S. Coast Guard spokesman said there were no encounters with Canadian commercial vessels Monday.

Chief Petty Officer Paul Scotti of the 13th district Coast Guard in Seattle, Wash., said Canadian fishermen were showing a lot of sense.

Scotti said the Coast Guard is not deliberately searching for Canadian recreational fishermen.

"But should they be found and boarded, they will be subject to fines," he added.

The fishing war stems from each country's failure to take conservation measures requested by the other.

However, British Columbia fishermen will be able to remain in the halibut fishery off Alaska, the U.S. government said Monday.

The fishery is governed by the Convention for the Preservation of the Halibut Fishery in the Northern Pacific Ocean and the Bering Sea, the U.S. said in a note to the Canadian government tabled in the Commons Monday by

Major Reform the Price Of West Aid to Mobutu

PARIS (UPI) — The United States and four Western allies agreed at a meeting that ended early today to help Zaire President Mobutu Sese Seko stay in power only if he carries out sweeping political reforms, conference offirials said.

But the United States turned a cold shoulder to France's call for a new $1 billion aid fund for Africa and for public support for French-backed plans to set up a pan-African security force with Western equipment and training.

French, Belgian, British and West German officials attended the meeting along with U.S. Undersecretary David Newsom to determine what the West should do against upheavals in Africa which Western experts claim are often inspired by Soviet Russia and Cuba.

In an official communique ending the one-day meeting on Soviet and Cuban penetration of Africa, the five nations pledged to assure Zaire's integrity and economic recovery and to help other African countries to safeguard their security with Western help, thus leaving it to the Africans themselves to decide how they want to defend themselves.

Meanwhile, a fleet of U.S. transport jets poured hundreds of Moroccan troops into the heart of Zaire's Shaba province today, fulfilling part of the West's pledge to help Africa form its own internal security force.

Elderly Escape Fire

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 100 residents of a downtown hotel, most of them old-age pensioners, were evacuated early today when fire swept through a nearby automobile parts building.

Police said at least 20 residents were carried out, some because they were unable to walk and others because they did not realize they were in danger.

Sixteen of the more frail residents were taken to another hotel. The remainder returned to their rooms about two hours after the fire was first reported.

Police said none of the residents were injured.

There was no damage reported to the hotel, fire officials said, but the auto parts building was extensively damaged. Cause of the fire had not been determined.

British Sportsmen In Double Disgrace

By FRANK RUTTER
Times London Bureau

LONDON — British sportsmanship has suffered a double disgrace and neither cricket nor soccer can ever be the same again.

On the very day that a Scottish World Cup soccer player admitted taking pep pills the English cricket team won a test match by tactics of violence and intimidation.

Ironically Scotland failed dismally in its first World Cup match in Argentina last weekend, losing 3-1 to Peru. But the ultimate disgrace was the disclosure that Willie Johnston took fencamfamin, a stimulant drug, before the game. "I thought the whole team was on tranquilizers," commented an embittered Scot at home.

While some papers headlined "My Sham" stories about Johnston and his life ban from international soccer, others carried stories headlined "Test Sickener" about the cricket match between England and Pakistan which ended Monday.

Although they had a huge lead and two days in which to bowl out the Pakistan team, England chose to cut the game short by bowling at the batsman rather than the wickets.

The result was a quick win for England and a facial injury to Pakistani Iqbal Wasim who had to retire to have his lip stitched up.

He was struck by a ball deliberately bounced up off the pitch by Bob Willis.

Ironically the game had begun last week with another Pakistani, Sadiq Mohammed, wearing a crash helmet to protect himself from just such tactics. But Sadiq was not hit. The victim was a "tail ender" whose batting average was only three runs.

What made it worse was that England's captain, Michael Brearley, a sometime philosophy don, refused to apologize.

The Daily Express reported England's victory as being stained with Pakistan blood and former England bowler Jim Laker wrote that it was "as clear a case of intimidation as I have seen on a test ground."

Chinese Ships to Pick Up Thousands Fleeing Vietnam

HONG KONG (WP) — Vietnam announced Monday night it will allow the evacuation by sea of its Chinese residents, opening the way for what is expected to be one of the largest and most rapid population migrations in recent history.

Radio Hanoi said the Chinese ambassador Chen Chi-Feng had been given a note saying ships sent by Peking could pick up any of the estimated 1.8 million ethnic Chinese in the country who wished to leave, a number Peking expects to equal or exceed the total number of refugees in the mass exodus from from Vietnam since 1975.

The decision indicates Vietnam has resigned itself to the loss of a substantial part of its labor force at a time of great economic distress in order to appease its powerful northern neighbor and rid itself of troublesome members of a large minority group.

Without any assistance from Peking, about 105,000 ethnic Chinese already have managed to flee to China in the last year, most of them arriving in southern China in the last three months as Vietnam has begun to exercise harsh economic measures against Chinese shopkeepers and other Chinese who refuse to become Vitenamese citizens. Peking officials have said they expect a total of perhaps 300,000 refugees, but reports from those Chinese who already have left Vietnam indicate that an organized sea evacuation could create pressures for a far greater exodus, particularly in South Vietnem where most of the ethnic Chinese live.

Relatives of previous evacuees who have fled here as well as to China are expected to want to rejoin their families and hundreds of thousands of others are expected to be eager to take the only easy escape route from the worsening economic conditions in Vientnam's recently conquered southern half.

Manitoba Running Dry

WINNIPEG (CP) — Strikes and lockouts in the Manitoba brewing industry caused a run on beer throughout the city Monday.

By nightfall, stocks had disappeared in most Manitoba Liquor Control Commission stores, and many hotels had sold out signs in their vendor outlets.

Manitoba Hotel Association president George Prost predicted most hotels will be completely out of beer by the weekend if the labor-management disputes aren't settled quickly.

"This strike caught us right in the solar plexus. It came as a complete surprise," he said.

The first of the strikes began at midnight Sunday at Labatt's Manitoba Brewery and Kiewel Pellissier. A short while later, lockout notices were served on the Canadian Union of Brewery and Soft Drink Workers by Carling O'Keefe and Molson Brewery, and the breweries' distributing company was shut down.

Beer-lovers responded by flocking to nearby outlets and making individual purchases of as many as 90 12-bottle cases. However, some outlets limited purchases to one case a customer.

Drugs Involved In Prison Fire?

A 20-year-old inmate injured in a fire in his cell at the Wilkinson Road jail early Sunday morning may have been under the influence of drugs at the time, the director of the institution said today.

Harry Bacon said it appears John Richard Marlow took took some substance prior to the fire which broke out shortly after 2 a.m.

"There is some doubt in our minds whether he might have used drugs," he said.

However, he added, no contraband substances were found in the man's cell after the fire.

Marlow, a native of Comox, remains in critical condition in the Burns Unit at Victoria General Hospital with burns to more than 50 per cent of his body.

One of seven men charged in connection with the April 15 prisoner riot at the Jordan River corrections camp that resulted in a fire that destroyed a $300,000 stores and gymnasium complex, Marlow was serving an 18-month sentence for breaking and entering.

He is awaiting trials on charges of being unlawfully at large, possession of a dangerous weapon, and mischief.

Bacon said Marlow has a history of instability and earlier in the evening had slashed his arms with a razor blade. The wounds were superficial and he was treated at the jail.

Because of the incident guards tried to keep a close watch over him but at 2.15 a.m. they noticed smoke pouring out of his cell.

When they ran to the cell they found Marlow had taken springs from his bed and wound them around the door.

A mattress had been set on fire and placed in the front of the cell. Marlow stood at the back.

As the guards tried to open the door Marlow suddenly collapsed, overcome by the smoke, and fell chest-down into the burning mattress.

All inmates in the east wing, where Marlow was being kept, were evacuated from the area.

Bacon said the guards finally got the door open, the fire out and Marlow removed from the cell. Eleven minutes had passed.

Another inmate was taken to hospital with suspected smoke inhalation. He was treated and released.

A senior corrections official said the provincial fire marshal's office and corrections' branch inspection staff are investigating the incident. Their reports are expected later in the week.

City Couple Found

PORT ALBERNI(CP) — A Victoria couple who failed to return from a weekend camping trip were located about 19 kilometres east of here today, a search and rescue spokesman said.

The spokesman said Tim Southwood, 23, and Liz Eslev, about 20, were spotted in a wooded area below a road on Mount Arrowsmith by members of a search team. The two appeared to be in good condition, he said.

Rescue workers were deciding whether to walk down to the couple or send a helicopter in to pick them up.

A search meanwhile is continuing in the Port Alice area, where a tracking dog was being brought in today to try to locate two loggers missing since Sunday in the Quatsino Sound area.

Southwood's locked car was found Monday off a logging road on the east side of Mount Arrowsmith.

Police said a vehicle belonging to the missing loggers was found at the end of a logging road in Side Bay near the entrance to Quatsino Sound late Sunday.

Clark said the men, aged 21 and 24, had apparently planned to hike two miles through extremely dense bush to a desolate beach.

An RCMP helicopter searched the area Monday with officers calling over a loud-hailer for the men to head to high ground.

Clark said if the tracking dog is unable to locate the men, a ground search party will be organized.

Weather map unavailable today

A large trough has remained stalled off the west coast but has moved close enough to push some high level moisture over the coast in the form of streaks of cirriform clouds. This trough will reach the coast late this week — if at all — but promises no relief for the tinder dry forests as we head into the second week of dry weather.

McCARTHY WITHDRAWS

Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy withdrew Monday a remark made last week in which she accused NDP leader Dave Barrett of irresponsibility.

Speaker Harvey Schroeder had ordered the withdrawal on Friday, but Mrs. McCarthy was not in the legislature.

Schroeder made the ruling after Mrs. McCarthy had criticized several opposition MLAs after Graham Lea (NDP—Prince Rupert) had made public B.C.'s position on the Canada-United States maritime boundaries negotiations.

110,000 Rightwingers Get Chinese Amnesty

New York Times

HONG KONG — As part of a broad new effort to restore victims of political persecution, China has recently released about 110,000 people who had been detained since an anti-rightist campaign in 1957, Chinese sources have disclosed.

In addition, many lower-level Communist party officials, intellectuals and ordinary citizens purged in the Cultural Revolution or during the heyday of the so-called radicals in 1975 and 1976 are being rehabilitated, reports from China's provinces indicate.

The campaign evidently is designed to help Peking regain popular prestige and make better use of China's skilled manpower in an all-out drive for modernization.

According to some accounts, Teng Hsiao-ping, the deputy prime minister who was himself twice removed from power, personally pressed for the widespread rehabilitations.

One of those arrested in the 1957 period who has been released and was allowed to come to Hong Kong to visit relatives, said that some rightists had been in prison, as he was, and others had been sent to labor camps, special state farms, factories or railroad construction gangs.

Articles in the Chinese press in the last few weeks suggest Peking's development-minded leaders are now concerned with undoing the wastefulness of the anti-intellectual thrust of the Cultural Revolution, during which thousands of scientists, technicians and teachers were thrown out of their jobs and sent to work in factories or the countryside.

In Liaoning Province alone, reported the party paper, Jen-min Jih Pao, "about 10,000 scientific and technical personnel were forced to settle down with their families in the countryside."

LOCUST PLAGUE STRIKES

NAIROBI (AP) — Swarms of crop-ravaging locusts are invading Ethiopia, where the government already is involved in critical relief operations for one million starving persons in the northeast, it was announced Monday.

Addis Ababa radio said clouds of locusts have descended in all areas of northwestern Begemdir province and local officials have appealed for aid, saying they cannot control the situation alone.

Two days ago, Ethiopia's Marxist military government began a major operation to transport food to an estimated one million persons facing starvation in drought-stricken Wallo province northeast of Addis Ababa, the capital.

Soviet Manoeuvres Defying Japanese

TOKYO (Reuter) — A large Soviet navy force today was reported moving toward Japanese-claimed islands in the northern Pacific as the Soviet Union apparently prepared to open military manoeuvres in defiance of a Japanese government protest.

Intelligence sources here said that the force, composed of two missile cruisers, two missile destroyers and an unknown number of submarines as well as support ships, was moving toward Soviet-occupied islands claimed by Japan in the Kuril chain.

At the same time, they said, the Soviets already appeared to have moved about 1,000 troops to one of the islands, Etorofu, by transport aircraft during the last few days.

They said 10 big Antonov-12 transports, each capable of carrying about 90 troops, landed on the island, one of four occupied by the Soviet Unipon at the end of the Second World War.

They also said three or four Soviet navy landing craft are approaching the island, causing speculation that the Soviet navy might practice amphibious operations on Etorofu.

The sources said they have no knowledge of Soviet plans for the exercise, but a pattern seems to be emerging in ship movements as the manoeuvre began.

Last week, Japan protested to the Soviet Union after radios in Vladivostok, the headquarters of the Soviet Pacific fleet, warned shipping that a firing exercise would begin off Etorofu at 2 a.m. local time (11 a.m. PDT Monday).

The Japanese said the Soviet Union would be violating international law if it conducted military exercises in Japanese waters and would endanger Japanese fishing boats working in the area.

All Japanese boats have been withdrawn from the region, where the Soviets said they would conduct firing exercises until next Monday.

'Cuban Work Has Just Begun'

UNITED NATIONS (AP) - Angolan Foreign Minister Paulo Teixeira Jorge says he "can't even guess" when the Cubans will leave his country "because their work has just begun."

"The Cubans are in my country for the simple reason that we have two bad neighbors — Zaire and South Africa — and Cuba will send as many people as we need and they will stay until the work is finished, but I can't even guess when that will be," Jorge said.

"America responds with silence when thousands of French troops intervene in Africa, but we hear this hysterical scream when we invite the Cubans in," Jorge said.

The U.S. government "would have you believe that it was pursuing a new, enlightened policy toward Africa when in fact it has merely changed tactics," he added.

Jorge said he could not give the number of the Cubans in his country because he did not keep track of them. But he said most of them were non-military personnel. His statement conflicted with U.S. intelligence reports indicating that nearly 20,000 of some 23,000 Cubans in Angola are soldiers.

He also vigorously denied charges that the Cubans in Angola and the Angolan government had a role in last month's rebel invasion of Zaire's Shaba province.

Jorge called the invasion a "popular uprising against a corrupt and oppressive regime" by Lunda tribesmen forced into exile in the 1960s after an abortive attempt at secession. The rebellion, he said, was an outgrowth of Zairian President Mobuto Sese Seko's failure to deal with tribal conflict and a worsening economic situation.

CUBANS ALSO TRAIN RHODESIAN REBELS

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — Rhodesian guerrilla leader Joshua Nkomo acknowledged publicly for the first time today that Cubans are training his 6,000 man army in Zambia.

Nkomo said he will use the Cubans and the arms the Soviet Union is supplying him to "scare away" the West from Rhodesia.

Diplomats in Lusaka estimate that 75 Cuban military advisers are in Zambia.

Calling the Western powers "hyenas," he charged that they are propping up the "oppressive" government in Salisbury, and that between 11,000 and 15,000 mercenaries are fighting alongside Rhodesian security forces against the guerrillas.

Nkomo's Zimbabwe African Peoples Union is joined in a loose alliance known as the Patriotic Front with Robert Mugabe's Zimbabwe African National Union. Mugabe's guerrillas are based in Mozambique. Zimbabwe is the nationalist name for Rhodesia.

The front is waging a guerrilla war aimed at bringing down the biracial interim government formed in March by Prime Minister Ian Smith and three black moderate politicians, the so-called "internal settlement" boycotted by Nkomo and Mugabe.

Their agreement calls for an election by universal suffrage to install a black majority government by the end of the year. But it also includes guarantees of special rights for the white settlers that cannot be changed for 10 years.

The guerrilla leaders claim the settlement is a sellout that will perpetuate the domination of Rhodesia's 6.4 million blacks by the 272,000 whites.

SOVIETS, CUBANS KILLED: SOMALI CLAIM

NAIROBI (UPI) — Somali forces claim to have killed 40 Soviet and Cuban soldiers and destroyed 26 tanks in a battle last week in Ethiopia's Ogaden region.

Mogadishu Radio, quoting the insurgent newspaper Danab, said Western Somali Liberation Front guerrillas killed 250 Ethiopian troops in the battle at Suryasagaaro in the eastern Ogaden May 30. Twenty-seven military trucks also were reported destroyed.

The radio also reported guerrillas killed 43 Ethiopian soldiers at two points near the town of Nagele.

Mould Eating Masterpiece

MILAN (AP) — Mould is devouring what is left of Leonardo da Vinci's 15th-century fresco masterpiece The Last Supper, painted on the wall of a Milan church, an Italian art official said Monday.

Carlo Bertelli, the Lombardy region's superintendent for fine arts, described the mould as "a sort of cancer devouring" the painting. He said it was caused by a chemical combination of city smog and the resins and pigments of the painting on the wall of the Santa Maria alle Grazie Church.

The Last Supper, regarded as one of history's great works of art, was painted by da Vinci between 1495 and 1498. Art experts say the artist's own experiments in the fresco medium account in part for damage first noticed in 1517.

Bertelli said the mould "disease" was discovered by a team of experts during a three-month study of the fresco. He called for an immediate meeting of art experts to work out a restoration plan.

"If urgent restoration is decided, the fresco can be saved and the past splendor of its colors renewed," the superintendent said. He gave no indication what the project might cost.

Food Prices Going Up

Everyone who shops for food these days knows the exasperation of watching food prices rise higher each time one goes to the store. Many, especially those on tight budgets or fixed incomes, know also the despair of trying to eat or feed a family decently when the food dollar shrinks every visit to the marketplace.

All this is bad enough, but worse is the realization that the recent burst of price increases for food is quite liable to wreck the country's anti-inflation efforts of the past three years.

There are no indications that the recent sharp food price increases are about to moderate. The latest survey from the outgoing Anti-Inflation Board showed that food prices in Canada rose more than three per cent in the four weeks from mid-April to mid-May. If that were to continue for a full year, the increase would be close to 40 per cent.

For some products, the increase in the four-week period was even worse — four to 4.5 per cent, a figure that would mean prices would be up by more than half if the same trend continued for a year.

It is unlikely that increases will be so severe for an entire 12-month period, but some economists and consultants are predicting that food costs will be up by 15 per cent or more during 1978.

Because food is so essential, its prices have a marked effect in the calculation of the over-all Consumer Price Index (CPI), and a 15 per cent increase there could push the over-all inflation rate close to, or even over, the 10 per cent mark. That 10 per cent mark is widely regarded as a critical borderline; above it inflation may be seen as becoming an extremely severe problem. It was when double-digit inflation was becoming a standard in Canada that the Trudeau government launched its wage-and-price control program in 1975.

Now, however, the wage and price controls have been removed, and this will make the problems of the food price increases even more severe. Labor unions, negotiating for the first time in 30 months unrestrained by controls, are not going to be willing to accept wage increases of four, five, or six per cent a year when they see food costs rising that much in a couple of months.

Nor is there any reason why they should. It is unreasonable to expect workers to accept a wage that does not come close to keeping up with inflation when there are no restraints whatsoever on profits and prices.

Yet as soon as both wage and price increases of 10 per cent or more become common, the whole inflationary spiral has begun again in a way that seems difficult to stop except by drastic government action.

There are no easy answers to the problem of food price increases. Researchers note that most of the price increases occur in foods where trading conditions between Canada and the U.S. are relatively free, such as beef, and in foods imported from other countries, such as fruits brought in from Mexico and Central America. There is little that any level of government can do to control the prices of imported products.

However, there may be other directions in which governments, either federal or provincial, could move. For the long term, they could be doing much more to encourage agricultural programs that would make B.C. and Canada more self-sufficient in terms of food production. For the shorter term, probably only stop-gap measures are possible; some of these may be explored by the B.C. legislative committee now studying a number of aspects of food prices.

The committee's work is a start, but Ottawa should also be undertaking immediate studies on ways to combat the food price increase problem. Otherwise it may find itself with a far more serious problem to combat — another full round of double-digit inflation.

Too Risky

Later this week Victoria city council will decide whether it will allow a beer garden for a week this summer near the causeway, probably on the old Coho wharf. Council has already rejected once the proposal brought forward by a non-profit service group, but the downtown business committee took another look at it last week and reluctantly agreed to support it when it returns to the full council.

Undoubtedly the service club is acting out of the highest motives in making the proposal. All profits would go to charity while the beer garden would provide entertainment for residents and tourists alike.

But even given all those advantages, the city would be taking entirely too much risk in allowing the plan to go ahead. Although the sponsors have emphasized that they are willing to take every possible precaution to keep the beer garden orderly, it doesn't seem likely they could guarantee that no trouble would occur. Indeed, it seems almost inevitable that there would be trouble with litter and noise, and worse, a new outdoor beer-drinking spot might well prove to be just the sort of place to attract troublemakers.

Supporters of the plan point out that beer gardens function perfectly well in Europe and don't cause trouble. However, they neglect to say that drinking habits in Canada are, sadly, very different from those in Europe. Few Europeans have grown up in the tradition that beer is a beverage to be drunk in large, bare barns for the sole purpose of becoming drunk.

Canadian beer drinkers certainly need educating, but it seems a little hard on the visitors to the Empress and other Victorians to offer the kindergarten course on the causeway.

JAMES RESTON

A-bombs and Muddy Words

UNITED NATIONS — You can't hear or read the speeches on the disarmament problem here at the United Nations these days without wondering about the decline of eloquence in the contemporary political world.

Nobody expected that this special disarmament session of the United Nations would do anything, but there was a hope that the representatives of the nations would at least say something that would make the world pay attention to the startling and undisputed facts of the arms race:

☐ In 1970, the nations of the world were spending about $200 billion a year on military arms. Since then, the total has doubled to $400 billion or more than a billion dollars a day.

☐ The size of regular armed forces in the world has increased to 23 million in 1978, two million more than in 1970 and seven million more than in 1960.

There Are 14,000!

☐ The major industrial nations are now exporting military weapons worth $8 billion a year to the poor developing countries — almost three times as much as in 1970 and four times as much as in 1960.

☐ Since the beginning of the 1970s, the United States and the Soviet Union have increased their stockpiles of nuclear warheads from 8,000 to 14,000, and the other nuclear powers — Britain, France, China, India and probably Israel — have another 500 deliverable nuclear weapons.

The consequences of this financial burden are well known. As Ruth Leger Sivard has observed in her compelling summary of the problem: "The arms race clashes with world development needs, stimulates price inflation, contributes to unemployment and poverty. It amplifies problems that all nations have in common, while weakening the co-operative effort necessary to deal with them. The accumulation of destructive force in the name of national defence has itself become the major threat to international stability and human security."

This last point is open to honest dispute, for it may be that the balance of nuclear terror is what has avoided a major war for over 30 years, whereas there were only 20 years between the two world wars of this century. But what is interesting here at the United Nations is that the advocates of arms control, with so much evidence on their side, are so inarticulate and ineffective.

U.S. President Jimmy Carter didn't even show up for the debate. Vice-president Walter Mondale didn't really deal with the tragedy of $400 billion a year in a hungry world, but made a cold war speech against the Russians and the Cubans for their aggression in Africa. This was fair enough, but it didn't contribute much to the control of the arms race.

VERSAILLES
... now, that was eloquence

What is missing in this debate is a sense of purpose, and the gift of definition among the representatives of the free nations. They came here to take this arms race by the throat, and make arms control the presiding issue of world affairs, but they are not succeeding.

Woodrow Wilson failed eloquently at Versailles and in the Senate in his efforts at a new world order, but the spokesmen of the west here today are failing not eloquently but miserably. In act, this majestic question of controlling the arms race has not even been able to compete with the border clashes in Zaire for the attention of the world.

This is not because the free nations don't have evidence on their side. The average family in the world today is paying more in taxes to support the arms race than to educate their children.

The nuclear bomb inventories of the United States and the Soviet Union are already able to destroy every city in the world seven times over, but the inventories are still growing by three nuclear bombs every day.

One tax dollar in six now goes to the arms race, worldwide.

Yet, while this disarmament conference at the United Nations has brought together many of the leaders of the world, it has been largely ignored by the newspapers and television networks of the United States, and most of the other communications organizations of the world. John Kenneth Galbraith has tried to explain why this is so in his foreword to Sivard's summary of the problem:

Decline of Eloquence

"There can be few more seemingly unequal political contests in the world," Galbraith said, "than those over military spending, its claims against social needs. On the one side, powerful military bureaucracies, influential and richly financed weapons industries, their lobbies, their captive legislators, those for whom paranoia or past wars are a way of life. On the other side, only reason, the will to survive and the inarticulate poor."

But ironically, just at the point where things became excessively complicated and we needed political leaders who could reduce all this diversity and confusion to some kind of identity the people could understand, the men of words seem to have disappeared from the political world.

Roosevelt, Churchill and de Gaulle could address their peoples in words that could move events, but in the west today, even on the great issue of arms control, Carter, Callaghan, Giscard d'Estaing and Schmidt cannot match them. And this decline of eloquence is clearly evident in the United Nations disarmament debate here these days.

"... here it is folks, the latest in bombs — this son of a gun will destroy the whole planet without harming a single human being ..."

Need Unions

Perhaps it is time we wage earners, organized or unorganized, blue collar or white collar — and yes, even the members of the armed forces — gave some thought as to how we came to enjoy our present standard of living.

One thing is certain. It was not willingly handed over all nicely gift wrapped by the Independent Contractors and Businessmen Association or any other present or previous employer organization. Give them the reins and we would soon be back to the days when the Hudson's Bay Company could put their coal miners in chains or Dunsmuir could call in Pinkerton goons and get the help of the militia to put down labor unrest.

The unions have fought on the picket lines, at the bargaining tables and in legislative assemblies to achieve todays' standards and their success has affected workers in all categories — organized or not. Even the armed forces after the Second World War benefitted from a restructuring of their pay to bring them to parity with their counterparts in civilian life.

It is said the unions are run by a few power-hungry bosses. The unions are no different than any of our business, service, fraternal, political or whatever organizations. They are run by dedicated leaders who are democratically elected by the members interested enough in their own welfare to attend union meetings while the majority of members are too busy enjoying the leisure time available under today's working conditions. I would venture to guess the ICBA functions under similar conditions.

It is also said that unions have outlived their usefulness. As long as we live in an economy in which the worker is a mere item of overhead and, like any other commodity, subject to the law of supply and demand, there will be a need for negotiations in the marketing of workers' skills. There are still far more Scrooges than Fezziwigs in the marketplace.

So you workers still fortunate enought to still have jobs, as you casually enjoy all the benefits achieved over the years just remember some of your fathers and mothers, and certainly none of your grandparents had it so good, and give a short prayer of thanks to the likes of James Hawthornthwaite, Sam Guthrie, Parker Williams, James Woodsworth, Dorothy Steeves and Grace MacInnis to name but a very few. They, and many more like them believed that the man who invested his skills was entitled to as fair a return as the man who only invested his money. — Douglas Tyre, 2025 Tanlee Crescent, Saanichton.

Forest Act

I wish to congratulate our forest industry on the consistently superb performance of its forests minister, Mr. Waterland. This tireless and persistent toiler, completely dedicated to the industry's postulates, is not only the best ambassador this industry ever had but also the cheapest one, since all his hard work does not cost the industry a single penny.

Mr. Waterland's new Forest Act is truly historical in its monumental magnitude. Long after we're gone, this act will be admired and studied throughout the world as an example of how an industry-inspired piece of legislation could scalp a country of its major resource, at the same time conning the affected population into actually supporting and even liking it.

Mr. Waterland's act is especially valuable to the forest industry now when it has to defend itself from the troublesome harrassment by environmentalist hounds whose noses are getting too keen for comfort and whose baying is increasingly being listened to by the populace.

With Mr. Waterland sitting tight on his department's can of worms, the logging industry can dedicate itself wholly and single-mindedly to the super-accelerated effort towards the ultimate solution of the forest resource problem in this province. There is no more worry that some of the best kept industrial secrets of the century might leak out. The public will never uncover the truth about the gimmick of the "maximum allowable yearly cut", or the true state of affairs in the reforestation sector.

And so, the "intensified forest management plan" will be able to progress in peace. Meanwhile, the forest industry will feed the more inquisitive minds with scraps from its own PR kitchens and the environmentalists will keep on fighting on two fronts, with the industry and the B.C. Forest Service, drowning in fabricated technical data and jargon, which the ordinary public wouldn't understand anyhow.

Besides, hasn't the public been assured that, for every tree felled, there are seven seedlings planted? To such good news we should rejoice, just as the man who was informed that his cold had been cured, shortly before he climbed the scaffold.

With the new Forest Act enforced, there is no worry that the public might ever find out that the number of seedlings is meaningless, unless it is translated into the number of acres which have been reforested out of the clear-cut acreage in the same year. How else could the true extent of the reforestation backlog became known, assessed and dealt with?

Of course, the forest industry and the B.C. Forest Service know that there are only some 10 years of mature timber cutting left in this province and that there will be a 15-year-long gap thereafter, before the second-growth trees will mature in industrially viable quantities. And this is why an accelerated exploitation will proceed, while the going is still good. After that — why worry? The logging industry will be safe, having moved its assets to Brazil or Indonesia and Mr. Waterland and his associates will return to a well-padded obscurity.

The one who'll remain will be the stalwart citizen of British Columbia, holding up a dollar with its green (forestry) half missing and scratching his head in bewilderment at what to do with all those immense logging slashes which the departed logging industry has left behind. — John Willow, Victoria.

Langford School

We are trying to contact as many former students, parents, teachers and friends who were associated with Langford elementary school in the past 31 years as possible. Miss E. Ruth King, who has been principal there since September, 1947 is retiring this year.

We are having a reception June 19 at 7 p.m. in the school auditorium to honor Miss King, and we wish to welcome back as many of her friends, students, colleagues as possible from the past and present. — Parent-Teachers Association, Langford Elementary School, Langford.

Fine Post Office

Taking pot shots at the post office seems to have become a popular pastime, but I think sometimes these shots fall a little wide of the mark.

For instance, you tell us that a Toronto man decided to test the service by mailing a number of items to which he had attached insufficient postage. Apparently he was quite upset to find that they were delivered in the normal way.

Neatly shifting the blame from the thief to the victim, he faults the post office for seemingly not noticing that it had been robbed. Would he have been happier had the mail been returned to sender? Or if attempts had been made to collect from addressee? I suggest to him that either course would not only have caused delays, but would have involved administrative costs far in excess of the few pennies due. The post office couldn't win.

Clearly the post office has serious problems, but I doubt that underpayment of postage is one of them. I simply don't believe that many of us are likely to cheat as he did. If we do, surely we forfeit any right to complain about the service.

Personally, I have always found postal employees to be courteous and helpful and our postal service generally to be as good as any. That is not to say that there is no room for improvement; constructive criticism is fine, but nothing is accomplished by smart-alecky attempts to discredit the service.

I am not in any way connected with the post office. — J. Langley, Victoria.

At City Hall

I have observed the efforts of municipal councils and the legislature with some sympathy for the difficulties they have encountered in their efforts to stem the rising tide of pornographic papers and magazines. This affront to good taste and morals continues unabated for the most part.

It now appears that our elective bodies have a remedy that could be legally effective. The proposal is to have all material which is offensive to the majority of people in a given area declared illegal. Offensive material could quickly be established in the Greater Victoria area by a display of titles in city hall and citizens' comments received and tabulated could establish the offensive nature of the publications very quickly, thus enabling the city council to bring in a bylaw, under enabling legislation if necessary by the provincial legislature.

It is to be hoped now that Justice Minister Ron Basford has pointed the way that the appropriate elected bodies will move quickly to remove the stench from the nostrils of our people. No longer do we have the stumbling block of a definition of pornography. Just a simple law to remove something offensive to the majority of the people, something which could quickly be established. Act now and save our children. — M. P. Paine, 3620 Quadra Street.

Rights Erosion

For some time I have been taking notice of the Health Minister Bob McClelland's monstrous proposal for compulsory heroin addiction treatment, with dismay.

The other evening I watched McClelland on television and listened to his mutterings. I was filled with deep forebodings that perhaps such a man might get his way and further erode human rights.

After more thought, I realized that he probably would be incapable of understanding the full implications of his program. I place the blame for this legislation on the person who appointed him to such a sensitive portfolio as the ministry of health.

The impression from his television appearance made me recall a few lines from Shakespeare:

Drest in a little brief authority,
Most ignorant of what he's most assured
His glassy essence, like an angry ape,
Plays such fantastic tricks before high heaven
As make the angels weep.

Thank heavens, the parliamentary opposition, the B.C. Bar Association, the Citizens Committee on Human Rights, and others, are vigorously opposing the scheme.

There must be some court high enough to protect citizens from this outrageous proposal. — W. R. Maclean, 3-1326 Yates Street.

Neo-fascists in Wings as World's Rightists Meet

By PAUL W. VALENTIN
Washington Post

The 800 international delegates and observers, ranging from sleekly tailored Europeans to robed Buddhist monks and Indians in saris, assembled sedately under the shimmering chandeliers of the Regency Ballroom in Washington's Shoreham-Americana Hotel.

Tiny flags of 100 nations and international organizations dotted the enormous, horseshoe-shaped conference table as participants listened to speeches and occasionally rose to make points of order. Interpreters gave simultaneous translations in Spanish, English and Chinese from a sound booth.

It was the 11th annual conference here of the World Anti-Communist League (WACL) — a little-heralded convocation of international conservatism, drawing an exotic array of political analysts, academics and public office-holders from throughout the world recently to map strategies against Soviet and Chinese communism.

Two U.S. senators — Jake Garn, Republican from Utah, and James A. McClure, an Idaho Republican, addressed the assembly, as did a member of the West German Bundestag, the vice- president of Guatemala and a key official in the Kuomintang, the ruling political party of Nationalist China.

But behind the speeches, the pomp, the meticulous attention to parliamentary detail and orthodox anti-communist pronouncements, other forces were stirring within WACL — forces of authoritarianism, neo-fascism, racial hierarchy and anti-semitism.

Unknown to many participants, activists who have quietly penetrated portions of WACL since at least 1972 were establishing new beachheads in Latin American and European contingents, attracting private Saudi Arabian money and utilizing the WACL infrastructure to create a loose consortium for the diverse elements of the international ultra-right.

A subtle but major development, for example, was the formal admission to WACL membership of the Movimento Sociale Italuano-Destra Nazionale, introduced at WACL's opening plenary session simply as "MSI," an Italian political organization. Conference delegates clapped politely. Few had heard of the organization, at least by that name.

In fact, MSI is the principal neo-fascist party of Italy, with 50 senators and deputies in the Italian parliament. It drew more than 2 million votes in the last national election. Party chief Giorgio Almirante, 62, ex-Blackshirt and leader in Benito Mussolini's government in the Second World War, attended the WACL conference along with several aides.

Other varied and wide ranging developments also occurred at the conference:

The official Mexican delegation, headed by Guadalajara University professor Raymundo Guerrero, circulated copies of Replica, a Guadalajara-based magazine with a centerfold article attacking the NBC dramatic series "Holocaust" on television as "another gigantic campaign of Jewish propaganda to conceal their objectives of world domination."

White racism

Nouvelle Ecole, a contingent of French activists, met informally during the conference with William Pierce, a former American Nazi Party functionary and currently head of his own group in Arlington, Va., called the National Alliance. The alliance promotes concepts of white racial superiority through a form of anthropological and historical research known in right-wing circles as "scientific racism."

Pierce said he met with Nourvelle Ecole members during the WACL conference because "they are working along lines very close to ours." Pierce was not an official delegate or observer at the conference.

Several well known racial separatists from Australia, South Africa and the United States attended the conference as either delegates or observers. They included Ivor Benson, white South African author and contributing editor for American Mercury and other overtly racist publications; Elmore D. Greaves, an early organizer of the segregationist Citizen Councils of Mississippi, and Eric D. Butler, an Australian activist and author of The International Jew, an annotated analysis of the Protocols of Zion, a set of documents purporting to show a conspiracy of Freemasons and Jews to subvert Christian values and establish a world state under joint rule. The documents have been rejected as spurious by most historians.

Liberty Lobby, a Washington-based ultra-conservative anti-Zionist organization headed by Willis A. Carto, assisted WACL in organizing the conference. Lobby employees recruited hosts and hostesses for the four-day session.

Robert M. Bartell, a Liberty Lobby publicist, coordinated advertising and press arrangements. Workers distributed Liberty Lobby literature, including copies of The Spotlight, a biweekly newspaper containing orthodox conservative political articles interspersed with anti-Zionist tracts and classified advertisements for Ku Klux Klan T-shirts, swastika-marked German coins and cassette tapes of Nazi marching songs.

Sheikh Ahmed Salah Jamjoom, a former cabinet minister in the Saudi Arabian government and now general manager of a heavy-equipment company in Saudi Arabia, shared the dais with other WACL officials as head of the Middle East Regional council of WACL.

In an interview Jamjoom said individual Saudis have contributed heavily to WACL in recent years, including about $75,000 toward the $300,000 cost of this year's conference in Washington. Registration fees from conference delegates and contributions from other regional councils paid the remaining costs, WACL organizers said.

Roger Pearson, anthropologist, sometime associate of Willis Carto and author of several books and articles promoting concepts of Aryan or Nordic racial superiority, presided over the conference. As president of the Council on American Affairs — a Washington-based research and publishing house for political and technical journals as well as host organization for WACL this year — Pearson automatically assumed chairmanship of the conference.

Among Pearson's assistants at the Council on American Affairs and at the WACL conference was Earl Thomas, a former American Nazi Party stormtrooper.

During one of the WACL plenary sessions Pearson spotted two men at the door of the Regency Ballroom peddling anti-Jewish tracts and reprints from the Thunderbolt, a newspaper of the avowedly racist National States Rights Party (NSRP) in Marietta, Ga.

Unaware

A reporter observed Pearson asking the two men to leave. "Not that I'm not sympathetic with what you're doing," Pearson told them, ". . . but don't embarass me and cut my throat." As the men left, Person asked them to "give my regards" to Edward Fields, national secretary of the NSRP.

Such visible incidents were uncommon during the conference, as delegates went about the more routine business of giving speeches and approving resolutions that condemned communism and decried the absence of human rights in Marxist countries.

Indeed, many participants, including the two U.S. senators, appeared genuinely umaware of the ultra-right developments in WACL.

"We'll certainly ask some questions about this," said Curt Burnett, an aide to Garn. "We would never lend support to anything like this."

"Any anti-semites or totalitarians in there would have been dismayed at Sen. McClure's speech because of its strong human-rights position," said McClure aide Jim Streeter.

WACL enjoys a general reputation in conservative circles as a respectable if largely ineffectual promoter of an outdated, 1950s-era anti-communism.

Founded in 1966 by Nationalist Chinese and South Korean political leaders, it served primarily as a propaganda tool against Communist China in its early years and reportedly still receives financial support from the Taiwan government.

WACL continues to publish a magazine, Asian Outlook, extolling the virtues of the Nationalist Chinese government and maintains a small permanent secretariat in Seoul. WACL's honorary chairman "for life" is Ku Cheng-kang, a member of the central committee of Taiwan's ruling Kuomintang.

In recent years, however, the Chinese-Korean influence in the organization has been challenged by the proliferation of ultra-right WACL members from Europe, Latin America and the Middle East.

As their presence has become more evident, several orthodox American and British conservative groups have pulled away from WACL, leaving the remaining moderate groups increasingly isolated.

Conspicuously absent from this year's WACL conference as either delegates or official observers, for example, were representatives of the John Birch Society, the Unificaion Church of Korean evangelist Sun Myung Moon and Lee Edwards' American Council for World Freedom.

Edwards' organization, based in Washington, was at one time the principal American constituent member in WACL but pulled out in 1975 after initial reports of anti-semitism in WACL had surfaced. Edwards' organization was succeeded by Pearson's Council on American Affairs as the official U.S. constituent member of WACL.

He has friends in Congress, is an editorial associate of such orthodox conservative "think tanks" as the Heritage Foundation and the American Security Council and is a recipient of at least $36,000 in grants from the Pioneer Fund, a genetics-oriented organization that has funded research by William B. Shockley and other scientists who believe blacks are inherently less intelligent than whites.

Pearson, who holds a doctoral degree in anthropology from the University of London, is regarded by many of his acquaintances as a skilled "scientific racist," a term used by ultra-right-wing theorists for technical research supporting concepts of racial hierarchy and intelligence differentials between races.

Pearson, however, has not published any overtly scientific racist tracts in at least 15 years, writing instead more conventional, textbook-style material. His colleagues at Heritage Foundation and the American Security Council, as well as several members of Congress acquainted with him, appear unaware of his earlier writing.

Born in London, Pearson lived in India and what is now Bangladesh from 1945 to 1965, serving first as an officer in the old British colonial army, then as managing director and chairman of several British-held industries, including tea plantations, in the post-colonial period.

Publishing

He met Willis Carto of Liberty Lobby during this time, according to sources who knew both men, and in 1965 Pearson moved permanently to the United States and joined Carto in a number of publishing ventures.

Pearson had also written several small books on race in the late 1950s and early 1960s. In one, Race and Civilization, he singles out the Nordic as possessing a "certain mastery of his new nature . . . This, reinforced by a traditional respect for honesty and truth, a love of competition, a calmness of judgment and sense of responsibility to others, has always marked the race out from other European peoples."

In another book, Eugenics and Race, Pearson outlines his artificial-insemination-sperm-bank concept:

"If the biological fitness or worth of the (sperm) donor were properly studied, then within a few generations, or within one generation even, a new super-generation could be produced, descended lineally from only the fittest and more capable of the previous generation, and the first nation-state to introduce this procedure would eventually dominate the rest of the world — so superior would be its individual members."

Pearson left Carto sometime in the late 1960s and entered the academic world, teaching anthropology at Queens College in Charlotte, N.C., and the University of Southern Mississippi in Hattiesburg, and becoming dean of academic affairs at Montana College of Mineral Science and Technology in Butte.

He wrote several more books, including a college textbook entitled An Introduction to Anthropology, published by Holt, Rinehart & Winston. These latter books are more nearly academically neutral and lack the spirited advocacy of his earlier work.

Some of his recent writing, including a still-to-be-published dictionary of anthropological terms, has been underwritten by Pioneer Fund grants.

Pearson quit the teaching world and came to Washington in 1975 to set up the Council on American Affairs. There he publishes a quarterly called the Journal of Social and Political Studies, an academically orthodox publication, and a highly technical linguistics quarterly called the Journal of Indo-European Studies.

He also publishes periodic monographs containing political analyses on unionism, communist insurgency in Central America, Soviet intervention in Africa and other subjects by both political scientists and prominent conservative members of Congress.

'Hanging is Too Good for Him'

The 19th Century Playboy Adviser

By LEE LESCAZE
Washington Post

A lover should not hold his bride by the ears. Clergymen should not be fed on the choicest delicacies lest their other "appetite" be inflamed. A four-leaf clover slipped into a man's shoe will make him forever adore the woman who placed it there.

If you didn't know these simple rules pertaining to sex, manners and morals, it is because you haven't learned from the past — but there is still time to take a quick course.

A woman can learn the almost forgotten secret of Hesse and Oldenburgh, where many a man's heart was captured by a girl who cleverly cut her finger and allowed a few drops of blood to mingle with his glass of beer. (In Bohemia, bat's blood could be used by any who flinched from pain — and had a supply of bats.)

Men can still be saved from the tragedy of marrying a woman with a forehead shaped like their own. And parents can be reminded that it is dangerous to whip children lest they come to like it.

This lore is contained in This Was Sex, a collection by Sandy Teller of advice available in the late 19th and early 20th centuries on subjects now the province of advisers from Playboy and Penthouse. The advice comes from an era in which there was more action in movie-houses than on their screens, but it shares one mind-set with much of today's advice — it is written, in the main, for men.

The playboy, however, is the arch villain of whom all good company must beware. "Compared with his crime, murder is innocence. Even hanging forever would be too good for him," the author of Sexual Science states of the Seducer.

But just when everything seems clear, the author of Sexual Ethics: A study of Borderland Questions counsels men that it is not always easy to tell whether a woman's resistance is feigned or real.

"Whether the use of a certain degree of violence will arouse the most ardent passion of love, or the most furious anger . . . whether he will find himself in paradise or in the penitentiary," is a question on which the reader receives no clear instruction.

Other subjects were easier for our ancestors' advisers.

To lose weight, women are told to have lots of children, drink squawvine tea and sleep sparingly.

In this corsetless age it is a relief to read that we are free of one damnable habit. Tight-lacing, it was said, was more destructive than those other destructive hyphenated habits: tobacco-chewing, liquor-drinking and pork-eating.

One adviser hazarded the theory that it was because of their tightly-corseted waists that women screamed when they saw a mouse. Although his research data are weak, it is true that today's unlaced women don't do much screaming at mice.

Teller has chosen from a wide variety of sources.

You can learn everything from why women are't good at clapping their hands to the dangers of having sex soon after eating.

There is even a motto for young men: "The mind away from sexual thoughts and the hands away from the parts."

Big Mother is Watching You

LONDON — A survey revealing that the British child watches 22 hours of television a week and that 79 per cent of parents don't control what they watch is already provoking the usual set of reactions:

Teachers are saying the report confirms their worst fears about the British parent; the fact that the nation's tots are yawning off in class has nothing to do with the quality of what is supposed to keep them awake, it is what happens to them the night before at home.

Moral protesters are saying this explains the spiritual decline of the nation; that members of Mrs. Mary Whitehouse's puritanical Viewers' and Listeners' Association who are driven to commit sex and violence do so in response to TV, and no doubt it is the same with the children. Journalists and producers, however, say that any attempt whatever to divert the steady stream of slush that flows into the nation's homes is simply censorship and little better than the burning of books at Nuremberg.

Meanwhile, the downtrodden parents go on trying to get the kids to go to bed, or to shut up and read a book; all the mums knowing that if dad wants to watch Starsky and Hutch the chances of getting the children to sit with their backs to it are about as good as Idi Amin's chances of winning a South African election.

So parents don't seem to have the authority to make children switch off TV and get on with their homework; goodness, how sad. But why on earth should anyone be surprised? For a hundred years the down-grading of parents has been going on.

First you take the children off into schools to teach them to read; fair enough, since parents who can't read themselves can scarcely instruct their young. Then you notice that half the brats seem to be starving, so you give them meals at school — Octavia Hill, lone voice among the reformers, thought it would undermine the working class mother and everyone thought she was crazy. But with hindsight you could say she had a point — or at least that few things have changed the housewife's life more than the fact of the family not coming home for midday dinner.

Over the years, more and more of what the family used to do for a child has been taken over by outside experts: putting a lad to a trade, dosing the kids for measles, teaching them The Facts (or telling them not to be filthy), showing them how to cook and to play and what's the phrase? — to socially integrate. Whoever knows best, it's certainly not Mother.

All right, so that's the way society plays it; that is where the cultural influences come from; that is the name of the game. And maybe we should gang up more as parents than we do. But to blast us with what the TV companies want, the education the teachers think fit, the theories the psychologists dream up in the privacy of other people's bedchambers and then to knock us for not keeping it all at bay more successfully seems to me plain unfair.

It is just possible, of course, that technology will rescue us from the TV dilemma at least. Haven't we read that more and more teaching is to be done by teaching machines, by television in schools? And in that case won't the children come home absolutely sick of it? We shall then, I suppose, see the poor exhausted parent struggling to keep the television switched on.

Tourist Flow And Dollars Up From '77

VANCOUVER (CP) — Tourism should grow by five per cent this year over the $1.3 billion it generated in 1977, Tourism B.C. officials said Monday.

David Hall of the department said the anticipated $182 million more in tourist dollars over last year may be a conservative figure.

The number of visitors to Vancouver is up 10 per cent over the same period in 1977 and their spending is up 15 per cent, said Hugh Main, manager of Tourism B.C.'s Vancouver office..

Board To Lower Boom On Produce Bootleggers

VANCOUVER (CP) — Federal health inspectors say that uninspected fruits and vegetables are being trucked from British Columbia to Alberta, contravening marketing board regulations which prohibit interprovincial movement of produce by unlicensed shippers.

Carl Grasby, a spokesman for the B.C. Coast Vegetable Marketing Board, said inspectors will soon be on the road 16 hours a day, 14 days a month, in an effort to stop illegal movement of produce into Alberta.

Agriculture Canada markets officer Don Fisher and grades standards officer Larry Binne said the unwashed, ungraded produce is being illegally trucked by unlicensed shippers.

They said licensed shippers are upset because those shippers avoid marketing board fees for washing, grading, packaging and distribution and can afford to undercut the agency-marketed products.

"This trend could undermine the entire marketing board set-up," said Fisher. "I've seen industries destroyed this way."

Barry Morgan, of the health protection branch, said his department will test produce which has not gone through marketing agencies and is sold at B.C. roadside stands, as well as distribution points in Alberta.

Ian Greenwood, general manager of B.C. Tree Fruits, said "if every one of our 2,000 growers were to bypass the umbrella agency there would be complete chaos."

Greenwood said the extent of the practice is not known, but is considered severe with cherries and peaches.

Fisher said prices to local consumers could be affected if the trend continues.

Inquest To Be Held Into Hiker's Death

KEREMEOS (CP) — Scott Atkinson, 20, of 1109 Highland Drive, West Vancouver, a student of Canadian Outward Bound Mountain School, collapsed and died Saturday while on an organized hike.

Adrian Todd, school director, said Atkinson was a member of an eight-student patrol with two instructors when he collapsed. He said the student was evacuated by helicopter to the school where he was pronounced dead by a doctor.

Judge Acquits RCMP Constables

NANAIMO (CP) — Three RCMP constables, charged with assault causing bodily harm after an incident at the detachment in Ladysmith in October, 1977, were acquitted Monday in county court.

Constables Dave Downey, Bruce Waite and William Van Wormer were charged after a struggle at the detachment involving Robert Raymond Simms, who had been picked up and arrested for being drunk in a public place.

Judge Skipp said he had "no hesitation from the evidence in finding justification for Downey making the arrest" of Simms.

He told the court he believed the actions of all three constables were justified.

VGH Executives Asked To Resign

VANCOUVER (CP) — The resignation of top executives at Vancouver General Hospital was demanded Monday by the Registered Nurses Association of British Columbia (RNABC) at a special meeting with the hospital's trustees.

Other RNABC requests included:

— The appointment of a vice-president of nursing;

— The resignation of VGH president Larry Truitt and acting director of nursing Dorothy Babcock;

— The reinstatement of three nursing directors who were dismissed Thursday.

Board chairman Milton Wong said the requests would be considered by the VGH joint conference committee that consists of representatives from the medical board, administration and trustees. He said the nurses would also be represented.

RNABC president Sue Rothwell said later that she was not confident the dismissed nursing directors would be reinstated.

Earlier Monday, Truitt suggested the trustees set up a review committee to investigate the factors related to the recent dismissal of the three senior nurses.

Win Miller, Lorea Ytterberg and June Nakamoto were fired by Babcock after they refused to sign a document of allegiance.

French FM for Kitimat

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC) has given the go-ahead on a French-language FM station for Kitimat, it was announced Monday.

A commission news release said the station would rebroadcast the CBC French-language AM radio network.

The commission also granted licences for an English-language AM station in Trenton, Ont. and an FM station in Marystown, Nfld.

A request by Seaside Cable Ltd. of Nova Scotia to add a special programming channel to carry House of Commons proceedings also was approved.

Before The Judge

An 18-year-old who admitted in provincial court Monday throwing a full bottle of beer through a window at the Sidney RCMP office March 28 was given a suspended sentence, placed on six months probation, ordered to perform 75 hours of community service work and instructed to pay $134.46 to the township of Sidney for the damages.

Robert Thomas Frew, 2081 James White Boulevard, pleaded guilty to a charge of mischief causing wilful damage.

Court was informed Frew threw the bottle through a rear window at about 2 a.m., injuring a civilian staff member in the RCMP detachment.

The judge was told Frew and a companion were arrested earlier in the evening for attempting to let the air out of the police vehicle tires.

Frew said the police roughed up his companion during their first encounter at the police station and that he was angry.

Judge William Ostler told Frew there are procedures to be followed if he had a complaint against the police.

Three young men were charged with stealing an inflatable boat earlier in the day.

They were 20-year-olds Garry Russell Nunn, 101 Hampton, and Caine Kutz Strasdin, 1376 Esquimalt, and 19-year-old Richard John Opp, 469 Grafton.

Legal-aid lawyer Brian MacKenzie requested one week for election of trial method and Judge Ostler released the trio on their undertaking to appear next Monday.

The boat is alleged to have been stolen from Zodiac Marine Ltd., 1208 Wharf.

Ostler sentenced an 18-year-old who pleaded guilty to breach of probation to seven days in jail.

David Edward Ferguson, 3241 Wascana, entered the plea and Crown counsel Don Laughton told the court Ferguson was convicted of two counts of breaking and entering March 31.

Laughton said Ostler himself gave Ferguson a suspended sentence, placed him on one year's probation and ordered him to obey a 10 p.m. curfew for four months.

Laughton said Ferguson was picked up at 10:47 that night by Saanich police for public mischief and being intoxicated.

A 35-year-old man facing the same charge was denied bail and remanded in custody to Friday for plea.

Robert Harley Klassen, formerly of 1631 Garnet, was charged with breaching a condition of his probation ordered May 11 by Judge Harold Alder that he not drink alcohol for six months.

Klassen was fined $50 on each of three counts of driving with a blood-alcohol content over .08 and one count of driving while suspended.

He was also charged with common assault on his brother, Gerald Klassen.

Lawrence Hitchmouth, 21, of 998 Humboldt, was fined $75 after pleading guilty to assaulting a desk clerk at Paul's Motor Inn on May 24.

Laughton said Hitchmouth entered the lobby at 12:30 a.m. and, after a dispute with Larry Richardson about a taxi, punched Richardson in the face, ripped the phone from the wall and hit him with an ashtray.

Hitchmouth denied hitting the clerk in the face or ripping the phone from the wall but said he hit him in the back with an ashtray. Hitchmouth admitted he was drunk at the time.

★ ★ ★

Ostler ordered a pre-sentence report for 29-year-old Thomas Colin Andrews, no fixed address, who pleaded guilty to a break-in May 28 at McGill and Orme Pharmacy, 1900 Richmond.

Andrews was remanded to June 26 for the pre-sentence report and sentence.

★ ★ ★

Fined $50 for impaired driving and $25 for driving without a valid driver's licence was 23-year-old Bertrand Louis Thomas, 245 Wilson.

Thomas was also ordered to perform 50 hours of community service work and was grounded for six months.

Laughton said he withdrew a charge of refusing a breath test demand because Thomas fell asleep in the police vehicle on the way to the Victoria city police station and in the room where the breath test was to have taken place.

Speedometer Stuck at 60, Court Told

An expert auto mechanic told an Assize jury Monday the speedometer of a car involved in a collision in which the driver of the other car died was jammed at 60 miles an hour when he inspected it.

John William Smith, a mechanic with the provincial government with more than 40 years experience, was testifying at the first day of the trial of Wayne Francis Enger, 19, of Colwood, accused of criminal negligence causing the death of Richard Joseph Van Raamsdonk, 22, in a head-on collision Oct. 23 in the 3400-block Metchosin Road.

Court was told the posted speed limit was 35 miles an hour and it was raining and the road was slippery when the accident occurred around 1:15 a.m.

Smith at first said it was his opinion that damage to the speedometer cable caused the needle to stick at 60 miles an hour, indicating to him that the 1977 Pontiac Trans-Am had been travelling at that speed and the damage, a right-angle bend in the cable preventing the inner cable from rotating, held the needle on the speedometer at that speed.

But he agreed this would be the case unless the diaphragm which links the speedometer cable with the needle on the dashboard instrument was so damaged as to hold the needle in that position.

Defence counsel Robert Higinbotham pressed Smith repeatedly on whether the apparent recorded speed might be different to the actual speed.

Smith agreed a sharp jolt to the face of the speedometer could send the reading up. But providing there was no obstruction, it would return. He also agreed that a stationary vehicle struck by another could show a reading and if the diaphragm was damaged that would stop the needle returning to normal.

Higinbotham asked him if the needle would return to zero once the cable is crimped. But Smith disagreed saying when he took the cable out the needle returned to zero. Pressed further on the relationship between the cable, diaphragm and needle and how transmission speed is reflected on the speedometer, Smith said an instrument technician would have to answer that.

Smith said the Trans-Am was in good condition as far as wheels, brakes, tires, suspension and steering were concerned. But the other car, a 1964 or 1965 Plymouth Belvedere, had two bald rear tires.

The jury was told in a pathologist's report that Van Raamsdonk suffered a broken neck and laceration of the upper spinal cord. He had a blood-alcohol reading of .13 per cent.

The first policeman at the scene, Const. Dennis Parsons of Colwood RCMP, said he smelled alcohol on Enger's breath and there were beer bottles in the car. While driving there, his police car tended to "slide out" but he was able to control the rear end slippage.

He said the Trans-Am had radial tires, superior to standard ones, while the Plymouth had ordinary tires.

Peter Harwood, driving at 35 miles an hour towards Pedder Bay at the time, said he was overtaken by a Trans-Am doing 40 to 45 which pulled back to the correct side of the road before braking while going around a corner. He then lost sight of him. About a minute later he arrived at the accident.

Steven Shingles, parked just off Metchosin Road close to where the accident occurred, said he saw a Trans-Am accelerating quite rapidly, go around the corner and there was a bang. He estimated the car's speed at about 70.

He drove to the scene and saw Enger in the driver's seat of the Trans-Am.

Shingles also said the brake lights of the Trans-Am were on as it approached the corner and left his view.

Const. Bruce Brown, who was with Enger in Victoria General Hospital emergency for two hours, said it was his opinion the man had been drinking and was impaired. He said this because his speech appeared somewhat slurred and his body actions did not respond to directions and tasks put to him by nurses and he did not appear coherent at times.

Dr. Phillip Teal, who treated Enger for five hours in emergency, said it was his opinion at the time Enger was at least under the effect of alcohol and probably significantly under the effect of alcohol.

Enger suffered a broken nose and broken collar bone. He was somewhat confused, seemed disoriented and had slurred speech at first but five hours later he was clearing up mentally— more attentive and co-operative.

'Kidnapped, Forced to Wed a Stranger'

Bizarre Abduction Spans Quebec, Algiers

MONTREAL (CP) — An Algerian woman says she wants to return to Canada but can't because her family is forcing her to marry a 30-year-old stranger at the end of the month.

"I love Denis . . . I will love him forever," Dalila Maschino said of her husband, who has been in hiding since his wife was whisked to Algeria April 25 from Montreal so that she could marry the man to whom she was promised at birth.

"Tell Denis to beware of everything," the 26-year-old woman warned in a telephone interview Monday with The Gazette from her brother's home at El Eulma, 350 kilometres south of Algiers.

Ms. Maschino said she couldn't remember the name of the man she was about to marry and admitted she hardly knew him.

Michel Proulx, a Montreal lawyer representing Ms. Maschino's brother, Messaoud Zeshar, denied the woman was being held captive and said she was there visiting her sick mother.

Of her abduction, Ms. Maschino said she was invited to her aunt's Montreal apartment for drinks April 24 with her two sisters and their husbands.

"When we arrived at (aunt) Nadia's we took some Tisane . . . then after about one or two minutes I just lost everything . . . I don't remember what happened. I woke up about 10 hours later in Algeria," she said.

Montreal police say the woman was taken to Dorval Airport and pushed in a wheelchair to a waiting DC-8 jet.

Police investigators Blaise Gregoire and Jacques Goupil say the alleged kidnap plot began April 7 when her two sisters and aunt arrived in Montreal.

"Maschino wanted to make peace with her family. To have her husband accepted by them," said Det.-Sgt. Gregoire.

But her brother, the patriach of the family, was against her marrying a Christian.

Police said he ordered a DC-8 lying in mothballs in an Ohio hangar repaired especially to bring his sister to Algeria from Montreal. The jet belonged to a private airline he owned.

On April 22, police says, he arrived aboard the jet in Montreal. That night Ms. Maschino and her husband met her sisters in a restaurant and "they tried to convice them to return to algeria," said Det.-Sgt. Gregoire.

FISH WAR FRIENDS

Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc.

The U.S. accepted that position and said the tuna fisheries off the two coasts should be considered under the same light. That would allow Americans to enter Canadians waters to fish highly migratory species of tuna.

LeBlanc told reporters Canada is still considering that and other requests from the U.S. but he would not provide any details.

The ban also applies to sport fishing, except for Canadians fishing in U.S.-registered craft. For its part, Canada was allowing licensed U.S. sport fishermen to continue using Canadian waters for the time being.

B.C. Recreation Minister Sam Bawlf welcomed the federal government's decision Monday not to bar U.S. sports fishermen from Canadian waters, saying their expulsion would have created unemployment and harmed the province's tourist industry.

He said that the sports fishing industry in B.C. is worth $160 million a year, but he was unable to say how much U.S. sports fishermen contribute to this total.

The minister said the B.C. government is seeking further clarification on the negotiations.

Canada apparently stands to lose the most financially from the dispute. U.S. government statistics show that Canadian commercial fishermen harvested $59 million worth of fish in U.S. waters last year. The U.S. commercial catch in Canadian waters amounted to $7 million.

Marina Hearing

North Saanich council will hold a public hearing on a marina expansion proposal at Parklands School at 8 p.m. June 27.

North Saanich Marina has applied to dredge Tseum Harbor to permit the addition of about 300 boat berths to its existing 350 moorings. Council has already heard from ecologists on possible wildlife repercussions.

In other business, council did not endorse a letter, alleged to be from North and South Saanich Agricultural Society, asking the B.C. Racing Commission to ban harness racing at Sandown Park in September.

Mayor George Westwood said it was not clear whether the letter represented the society's wishes. It was received under the signature of president Doug Miller, who said he had no knowledge of it being sent.

A $30M Columbia Bonus?

VANCOUVER (CP) — Based on current costs, British Columbia's share of extra downstream power in the second half of the 60-year Canada-United States Columbia River treaty could be worth up to $30 million annually, a B.C. Hydro spokesman said Monday.

However, Charles Nash, general manager for corporate affairs, emphasized there are hazards in trying to estimate values 15 years from now. The treaty's second half begins in 1994.

Nash said any remaining B.C. entitlement to power benefits "will be based on conditions at that time and will be based to a large extent on the relative ability of the United States to be self-sufficient in energy."

Nash's comments came after Finance Minister Evan Wolfe, during a legislature debate on B.C. Hydro, denied NDP opposition claims that the treaty was a blunder costing B.C. $1 billion more than payments received to date from the U.S.

The benefits were made possible by construction of the Duncan, Arrow and Mica dams on the B.C. section of the international river.

They Bought Their Own School

By LORRAINE LOCHERTY
Times Staff

Parents of children attending one Victoria preschool have a special stake in the operation — next year they will own it.

A group of 15 parents of the three to five-year-old children who attend the Montessori preschool at Queenswood feel so strongly about the program they went right out and bought a building at Newport and Currie in Oak Bay.

Negotiations are in the final stages and the move is planned for September.

The school has been operating at Queenswood, a residence for Catholic nuns, for the last nine years.

It is being evicted this year because the nuns, who originated the school after sending a sister to England for Montessori training, have decided to withdraw from its operation.

Program director Jeanne Prette, who has been with the school five years, said everyone connected with the operation is excited about getting a new building.

The new facility, formerly a ballet school called St. Christophers, is an old Tudor-style building in Oak Bay. It will handle 50 students, compared to the 25 that can be accommodated at Queenswood.

Parents are already planning a decor to enhance its natural beauty and sense of history.

The Montessori program was developed by an Italian teacher Maria Montessori about the turn of the century and took hold in European schools about 1911.

★ ★ ★

Montessori's philosophy is that each child has a spiritual, internal sense of order and harmony that if placed in the proper environment will become a desire to learn.

The proper environment, according to Prette, is a deep feeling of love and respect for the individuality of all living things.

The Montessori program at Queenswood is religious without being affiliated to any one particular religion.

The children are encouraged not to distinguish between work and play; to incorporate the two and look upon learning as pleasure.

They are not forced to read, write or work out mathematical sums, but many of the children turn toward these things instinctively as their natural sense of order flourishes.

The children work on various problems with an intensity not normally seen in other kindergartens.

Sometimes the transition from a Montessori school to a regular grade one class can be disturbing for the teacher and the student.

The former Montessori students shows a curiosity and desire to learn that stands out in the classroom and all the questions can be a bit unnerving for the teacher, Prette says.

She concedes that the individuality nurtured with such care at the Montessori school is in danger of wearing off in the school classrooms that are not equipped to deal with children on such a personal level.

But the parents and teachers have a dream that some day they will have the resources to extend their Montessori preschool to a regular grade school and eventually to the high school level.

'Engineers' Darryl Volb, Leonard Paul

Stumped at the Pump . . . And Fighting Mad

Don Deloli is about ready to blow a gasket.

Deloli, who owns and operates the Superior 66 station at Superior and Oswego, said today work crews from the city of Victoria have been plugging up the entrances to his station on and off for a year.

And for the last four days B.C. Hydro employees have been restricting access to the station while they work on a nearby pole.

Trying to run a business with dump trucks, backhoes and workmen all over the place is like trying to drive a car with three flat tires, Deloli said today.

"It's been going on for a year. I don't know how much gas revenue I've lost because of this," he said.

"The city's had me dug in with one thing or another and now Hydro's getting in on the act."

He said Hydro had a big work crew standing around apparently waiting for someone to come and tell them what to do while the city employees have been hard at work — on their suntans.

In the meantime, said Deloli, he's been sitting at his station watching his regular customers drive right by in search of more easily accessible pumps.

"I really don't know what to do about this," he added. "I was hoping you guys (the Times) could help with a little publicity."

City engineer John Sansom, however, said the city can't do anything to help Deloli.

He said there is a public works crew in the area putting a new water main down Superior but it's not blocking access to the gas station.

Sansom said Hydro's crews are solely responsible for the blockade.

"We did have a problem with that station when we were putting a sewer line in because we had to tear up the sidewalks, but that was resolved a couple of months ago," said Sansom.

"This is one instance where the city's not guilty."

City Teachers' Jobs Safe

Attrition has taken care of most of the teaching positions to be eliminated from the Greater Victoria School District in September.

The district will cut 66 teaching positions because of declining enrolment but no tenured teachers will have to be laid off, says administration superintendent Glenn Wall.

Teachers retiring or leaving the district will account for most of the positions to be cut and several teachers on temporary contracts expiring in June will probably not have their positions renewed, he said.

Weather Heats Up Sales In Dairy Products, Fans

Victoria's heat wave has created record sales of dairy products, a brisk business in camping gear and a near-sellout of fans and other cooling devices.

"We are selling so many fans we can't keep up with the demand," Woodward's manager F.D. Smith said today.

"We are wiring to the east for more. I've never seen anything like it."

Sales of other items, while brisk, are closer to normal levels.

"Camping gear is selling well for this early in the year. There is a heavy demand for tents, sleeping bags and those inflatable rubber boats. Sales of canoes are a bit slow but I guess it will pick up."

"The rush is on for bathing suits, also a surprise this early in the year. Some years the swimming season does not begin until July.

In the food department, dairy products were the big sellers during the past week and spokesmen for local dairies said sales have never been so high this early in the summer.

"Popsicles, ice cream, chocolate milk, ice cream bars — the sales are tremendous," one wholesaler said.

The dairies declined to give numbers for competitive reasons.

But spokesmen for both Palm and Dairyland said the sales had never been higher.

Victoria had record temperatures for three consecutive days on the weekend and the outlook is for mainly sunny weather although a bit cooler.

McGregor New Deputy

Saanich council Monday night ratified the promotion of Orval McGregor to deputy chief of the Saanich fire department, effective today.

McGregor, who joined the department 24 years ago, has been captain of the inspection branch for 11 years.

He succeeds Art Fryer, who was appointed chief following the retirement of Harold Gains.

TWO MEN GET BAIL

Two men arrested by RCMP after a counterfeiting investigation were freed on $2,500 bail each when they appeared in provincial court today before Judge Fred Giles.

John Daniel Vosper, 21, of 2792 Millstream, and Robert Gordon Sewell, 20, of 1166 Rhoda Lane, were remanded to June 13 for election of trial method.

Police seized about $20,000 in counterfeit U.S. bills last Friday in Saxe Point Park in Esquimalt.

About Those Taxes . . .

TOWN TALK

The deadline for paying property taxes in Saanich is June 30 or July 4, whichever way you look at it, and both dates are correct, according to municipal comptroller-treasurer Roy Broughton.

We asked Broughton why the tax notices being sent out to homeowners show the July 4 deadline, while the little booklet of Saanich facts which accompanies the notice refers to June 30.

His rather complex explanation goes something like this:

Taxes do have to be paid by June 30, which this year falls on a Friday. But no penalty is applied until after closing hours Tuesday July 4.

Saanich in the past has run into numerous problems caused by residents who allowed only a day or so for delivery when they sent their cheques by mail. Often the cheques arrived late and then the residents complained bitterly that it was not their fault.

To overcome the problem, Broughton says, Saanich decided to allow at least one full working day after the official deadline before applying the five per cent penalty.

And because the Monday this year is a municipal staff holiday, in lieu of Dominion Day falling on Saturday, Tuesday becomes the last day of grace for payment of tax bills without penalty.

Get it? Good.

Travel Minister Grace McCarthy left the yachtsmen high and dry at Friday night's reception at Government House for contestants in the three-quarter ton world sailing championships.

Well, almost.

She did have a fellow cabinet minister fill in for her when she couldn't make the party — but it was drylander Jim Hewitt, the minister of agriculture, who admitted to the salty types he felt like a fish out of water.

And probably out of his depth amid all that nautical jargon.

★ ★ ★

And speaking of Her Grace, she is probably not amused by this.

Amid all the Captain Cook adulation and commemoration, there are some souvenirs that aren't what you might call flattering to the worthy mariner.

We refer to the T-shirts produced by the West Coast District Council, the political organization of native Indians on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

One bears the inscription "Captain Who?" while another, depicting the explorer in a big cooking pot, declares "Cook the Captain."

Council spokesman George Watts of Port Alberni says 1,000 of the shirts were printed and most of them sold in the first week.

★ ★ ★

If any Saanich alderman is likely to feel cramped by the proposed $2,500 ceiling on election campaign expenses, it won't be Ald. Mary Casilio.

After the matter had been discussed at length Monday night, acting mayor Casilio informed her colleagues: "I spent $32 last time and I was elected."

"Oh, quit bragging," came the genial retort from Ald. Ian Cass.

A Canadian naval war hero will be the inspecting officer at 10 a.m. Wednesday when the ship's company of the destroyer HMCS Restigouche parades to mark the 20th anniversary of the ship's commissioning.

Inspecting the men on the parade ground of the Naval Officers Training Centre in the dockyard of CFB Esquimalt will be Rear-Admiral Horatio Lay (Rtd.), commander of the original Restigouche, which was commissioned Dec. 26, 1939.

Lay's ship took part in the Battle of the Atlantic and evacuated troops from France and Biscay. He was presented with the Order of the British Empire, as well as Poland's Cross of Valor.

Former crew members of Restigouche and families of her current crew will attend the parade.

Following the parade, a tree will be planted in the dockyard to commemorate the anniversary.

Thirty-nine members of the Victoria Amateur Swim Club are going on a swimming tour of Britain in August.

"It is the biggest thing that has ever happened to this club in its 59 years of existence," said Pauline Mosterd, president. "The club will be competing against champion British groups."

She said swimmers earned part of their fare with fund-raising activities such as bottle drives, car washes and raffles.

The ages of the Victoria swimmers range from 10 to 20.

The highlight of the tour will be participating in the British Age Group Championships in Coventry August 13-19.

They will also visit Southampton for a a meet against coach Stu Brambley's former swimming club.

Free If You're Quick

There are worse ways to spend a sunny day than aboard a boat watching some of the world's top three-quarter ton yachts racing in the world championships being held in these waters.

The provincial government has chartered the Lakewood, a vessel which normally takes people from Oak Bay Marina on cod-fishing jaunts, at a rate of $60 an hour as a spectator boat.

It's on a first-come, first-served basis and there's free coffee for all comers.

The Royal Victoria yacht people are handling reservation calls.

MILFOIL CHECK IN MOST LAKES

The ministry of environment has appointed two biologists to carry out a survey of B.C. lakes to document the spread of the Eurasian milfoil weed, a spokesman said Monday.

A recent survey of 200 lakes showed that milfoil has spread to Magic Lake on Pender Island, numerous ponds in the Greater Vancouver area and is threatening Centennial beach in Delta, the spokesman said.

He said the survey, which will include most lakes in the province, will take most of the summer to complete. If it is found the weed is spreading, more money will be spent next year to combat the problem, he said.

The ministry is awaiting approval to go ahead with its herbicide program for the Okanagan Lake program.

Consolation

Cross-floor legislative heckling usually irritates not only the Speaker but also the MLA who's on his feet.

Liberal leader Gordon Gibson takes a more philosophic approach, however.

Monday he was on his feet trying to direct a question to a cabinet minister while an NDPer and another Socred were heckling each other.

Speaker Harvey Schroeder called for order, asking members to afford Gibson some courtesy.

Gibson replied that he didn't mind the uproar.

"If you can't hear my question, Mr. Speaker, you can't rule it out of order."

Safe Driver Discount Mis-Named, Says MLA

The Insurance Corporation of B.C.'s safe-driver discount should be called the safe-car discount, says Coquitlam Socred MLA George Kerster.

During debate Monday on Education Minister Pat McGeer's estimates, Kerster asked the minister responsible for ICBC to re-examine and restructure the insurance corporation so it is fairer.

The discount goes out to vehicle-owners whose vehicles have not been involved in an accident instead of to drivers who are accident-free.

Kerster gave the example of a father who borrows his son's car and has an accident. It's not the father's insurance which goes up, it is the son's which is already high if he is under 25 years old.

A pensioner on fixed income who uses her car less than average and has it rammed while parked on the street is another example, Kerster suggested.

In suvch a case, the pensioner not only has to pay the deductible but also loses the safe-driver discount if unable to prove the mishap was a hit and run.

McGeer agreed it would be neater if true safe-driver discounts were possible, but there are no records to make it possible.

"Information is now being collected so it will be possible to consider this alternative," he said.

Ministers Reject Expenses Pay-Back

The ongoing confusion surrounding MLAs' expenses and the Constitution Act wasn't any clearer after events Monday.

Two of the three MLAs in question say they have no intention of reimbursing the expenses paid by the government on their behalf, while a third has put $800 in trust pending a ruling on the situation.

Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf, Agriculture Minister Jim Hewitt and George Kerster (SC-Coquitlam) may be sitting illegally in the house if a committee expected to investigate the matter rules they violated the act.

Bawlf and Kerster say until the committee makes a ruling they feel no obligation to pay back about $500 each the government paid on their behalf while working on a housing committee in 1976.

Hewitt, however, has placed a cheque for $820 in trust pending the outcome of the committee's deliberations.

An attempt Monday by the Socreds to get the committee going was blocked by NDP leader Dave Barrett who denied leave to bring the motion forward.

A 1977 committee died with the end of the session. Opposition parties boycotted the meetings fearing a whitewash because of the government majority on the committee.

They say a second committee this year will be just as bad. The government will almost undoubtedly appoint a majority of its members to the committee.

A fourth MLA — Len Bawtree (SC-Shuswap) voluntarily included himself with the group to be investigated saying he had received about $2,000 in government funds for ranch improvements, and could therefore be in contravention of the Act.

The admittedly archaic Constitution Act denies MLAs any expenses when working on government business except when the work is being done for a legislative committee.

The housing committee of Bawlf, Hewitt and Kerster was an ad-hoc one not recognized by the legislature.

Members who receive expenses in such situations can no longer sit according to some interpretations of the Act.

The Act also contains provision for any citizen to lay a suit against such members and if successful, collect $500 for each day the MLAs sit illegally in the house.

This could amount to quite a sum for the three members since the committee did its work in 1976, and 1977's session lasted a record breaking 136 days.

The current session is in its third month.

'Gifted Children Ignored'

Education Minister Pat McGeer said Monday he hopes to announce this month a new policy of promotion, assessment and programs for gifted children in B.C..

"The gifted children have been ignored," he said. "It is a very gaping hole in our program in B.C. We should have done it long ago, and we will do it."

McGeer urged Charles Barber (NDP—Victoria) to be patient in his demands for opportunities for the gifted, including an office of artistic education within the ministry of education.

He said his ministry is working on the basics first because there are no consistent standards for the average students, much less the gifted.

"There should be exciting programs for the gifted, and we don't have them," McGeer said.

"B.C. has done an extremely poor job — there is no question of it."

"Music and art education is under attack by idiots who view it as an unnecessary frill — some kind of largely irrelevent and unimportant piece of candy," Barber said.

Gary Lauk (NDP—Vancouver-Centre) called on the government to help children of immigrants in Vancouver who do not speak English.

Quebec Protests Bill Allowing Mail Opening

OTTAWA (CP) — Quebec Justice Minister Marc-Andre Bedard has told Jean-Jacques Blais, the federal solicitor-general, that Quebec considers certain aspects of a federal bill allowing the RCMP to open mail to be unconstitutional.

A copy of the letter, dated Feb. 23 but obtained by reporters here only recently, warns that Quebec feels the bill infringes on the right of the provinces to administer justice. The objections were raised on a constitutional basis, and did not touch the contents of the bill.

Blais has said the bill, not yet given third reading, is designed to allow the government to combat the importation of drugs through the mail, and to combat international terrorism.

Quebec is opposed to the section of the bill which says that on the written request of the solicitor-general or his agent, a judge can issue a writ for the investigation of an offence, authorizing the interception of mail and the seizure of drugs found in the mail.

Quebec has objected, saying the administration of justice is a provincial responsibility.

The Canadian Civil Liberties Association has also noted the bill raises certain constitutional problems.

A spokesman for Blais' office refused to reveal the contents of the reply to Bedard. However, it is believed Blais replied that in his opinion, the bill is constitutional and is related to federal legislative powers, including jurisdiction over the criminal law and the postal service.

In Quebec City, Bedard told the national assembly Monday that he would table his letter to Blais for the benefit of members, but that he would not disclose the federal minister's reply.

SOME GOOD NEWS: THERE'S LESS DEBT

OTTAWA (CP) - Good news about the economy being a rare commodity these days, it must have warmed some government economist's heart to provide the Social Credit Party this information Monday:

Only 12 per cent of Canada's expenditures last year were budgeted to pay interest charges on government debt, compared with almost a quarter of the budget in 1939.

Social Credit MP Adrien Lambert (Bellechase) asked the government to provide him, in writing, statistics describing what happened to the government's debt between 1914 and last year.

Predictably, it grew — from $336 million the year the First World War began to $30 billion last year.

However, the portion of the budget allocated to servicing the debt fell in percentage terms.

AIB Fight Before Top Court

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada agreed Monday to hear a case arising from the participation of Thompson, Man. steelworkers in the labor movement's national day of protest against the federal government Oct. 14, 1976.

The high court gave the United Steelworkers of America permission to appeal a ruling that the steelworkers had violated their collective agreement with INCO Ltd.

When members of the steelworkers union joined the national protest against the federal anti-inflation program of wage and price controls, it resulted in a shutdown of the company's operations.

The company filed a grievance and an arbitration board ruled that the union had not violated its collective agreement.

Dredge File Found

TORONTO (CP) — A former general manager of Canadian Dredge and Dock Co. Ltd. testified Monday that he has found a document involving negotiations for buying the company with one of the men charged in a $4-million fraud trial.

Robert Schneider told Ontario Supreme Court that the document, which he found cleaning his garage during the weekend, shows that he and Hugh Martin, who eventually became chairman of Canadian Dredge, discussed terms to buy the company in 1971.

The witness also said that under the discussed terms, Martin would have 55-percent control and he would receive 45-percent control.

Martin and 10 other businessmen and nine companies, including Canadian Dredge, are charged with conspiracy to defraud public agencies of more than $4.2 million between 1969 and 1975 by rigging dredging bids.

Gov't Building Probe Demanded

OTTAWA (CP) — Progressive Conservative Walter Baker called Monday for an investigation into whether a contractor was able to build a government office building in neighboring Hull, Que., because of his "special relationship" with the Liberal Party.

Government leaders immediately denied that any such relationship exists.

Baker quoted in the Commons a published report that said Campeau Corp., got approval for construction of Les Terraces de la Chaudiere despite strong opposition from Douglas Fullerton, then chairman of the National Capital Commission, and senior public servants.

"It proceeded on the basis that someone had some 'in' with the Liberal Party," Baker said. "That someone was (Robert) Campeau."

Baker, Conservative House leader and MP for Ottawa Carleton, said a public inquiry is long overdue. The inquiry should study how the decision was made to construct the building and "the extent to which the special relationship between the contractor and the Liberal Party may have been a factor."

He referred to an article in the Ottawa Citizen which quoted Fullerton as saying "I have found that Mr. Campeau with his first-class political connection is a very persuasive fellow."

Fullerton resigned as head of the capital commission, which oversees use of all federal lands in the national capital region of Ottawa and Hull, in 1973.

Public Works Minister Judd Buchanan said he would be willing to meet Fullerton to discuss his allegations.

However, Deputy Prime Minister Allan MacEachen said a public investigation is not necessary.

"Mr. Fullerton is not an authority on the Liberal Party and I suggest that his comments are quite unjustified."

MacEachen said decisions are often made against the advice of public servants "and will continue to be."

FRENCH BILL BLOCK PROTESTED

OTTAWA (CP) — Unity groups from British Columbia to Newfoundland have sent a telegram to Premier Davis of Ontario protesting his decision not to allow third-reading debate of a bill to protect French-language rights in Ontario.

In all 21 groups and individuals endorsed the telegram, sent by Contact Canada organization vice-presidents Davidson Dunton of Ottawa, Stanley Roberts of Calgary and Huguette Plamandon of Montreal.

The telegram said, in part:

"We believe that the support of this bill received from members of all parties in the legislature truly represented the growing understanding and generosity of spirit of the people of all regions of Ontario."

Gay Plea Rejected

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada Monday refused to hear an appeal from the Pink Triangle Press, publishers of the homosexual rights newspaper The Body Politic.

Pink Triangle wanted to appeal lower court rulings against quashing a search warrant used by police when they raided the newspaper's Toronto office Dec. 30, 1977. The police took away 12 cartons of material.

Lakes Clean-Up Planned

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says Canada and the United States have reached a tentative agreement following a year of negotiations to continue a pact to clean up the Great Lakes.

The newspaper says the act, an extension of the 1972 Canada-U.S. Great Lakes Water Qaulity Agreement, is expected to be signed by Prime Minister Trudeau and President Jimmy Carter in July.

The future of the clean-up program was threatened during negotiations when senior officials on both sides differed sharply on ways of achieving the objectives of the original agreement, the newspaper says.

The newspaper also says that during negotiations, U.S. officials recommended that U.S. law be applied to the Great Lakes while Canadian officials opposed the suggestion.

Swimming Lover Faces Thai Jail

NONG KHAI, Thailand (AP) — Australian journalist John Everingham and his Laotian fiancee Keo Srisomphone have been ordered arrested for their daring escape from Laos, Thai provincial officials said today.

The 28-year-old Australian swam the Mekong River with scuba gear May 27 and rescued his Laotian sweetheart despite the presence of Laotian soldiers nearby. On the return swim the couple was pulled from the river by a Thai patrol boat.

The governor of Nong Khai province issued the warrants Monday, charging Everingham with leaving Thailand without a visa and bringing an alien into the country. Keo was charged with entering Thailand illegally.

Everingham is in Bangkok while his fiancee is hospitilized at Nong Khai, on the Mekong, receiving treatment for malnutrition and exhaustion.

Everingham said he doesn't think the charges are serious. He said that during a telephone conversation with Nong Khai's deputy governor, Soomboon Thaivachamart, he was told he could turn himself in. Officials in Nong Khai said Everingham will be released if he posts a $5 bond.

Keo will not be arrested until after she leaves the hospital, police said.

"Unfortunately I've become a political football," said Everingham. "Technically I've broken the law; everybody here is sympathetic, but they must go by the letter of the law."

Nong Khai's deputy chief of police, Lt. Col. Thep Parmnadit, said he thinks the couple should have been arrested when they were pulled from the river. Instead, they were welcomed as heroes, and Keo was released from the refugee camp after a local resident posted bond.

TM Power Offer To Rhode Island

PROVIDENCE (UPI) — Followers of the Maharishi Mahesh Yogi say they have an offer Rhode Islanders can't refuse:

Take up transcendental meditation and see the nation's smallest state turn into "an ideal society."

Last week, the maharishi announced a major drive to teach meditation to 4 per cent of the state's population of slightly less than one million. He asked his instructors from across the country to go to Rhode Island.

Joshua Roberts, 22, is one of about 200 who showed up in Providence by Monday. He came from the Maharishi International Universjity in Fairfield, Iowa.

"By the end of the summer, we'll have created such a dramatic change in the quality of life in Rhode Island, even the most hardened skeptics will have to agree TM has a dramatic effect," Roberts said.

"There'll be less crime. There'll be less sickness. There's going to be less accidents. There's going to be increased employment. I think we'll even anticipate some improvement in the weather," he said.

HOLY MACKEREL VETOED IN SOUTH AFRICA

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — South African television has turned down an advertisement for a Walt Disney cartoon film because it has a mouse saying "Holy Mackerel!"

"It's quite a ridiculous situation," said David Barnes, editor of press services at the Ster-Kinekor film company. He said Ster-Kinekor was told last week the commercial, for Disney's The Rescuers, was unacceptable, and he surmises South African Broadcasting Corp. officials did not like the religious reference.

Earlier in the week, the company rejected a Ster-Kinekor radio commercial.

Warner Going Back To Farm and Liz

All sleek and shiny, Olivia Newton-John turns up for Hollywood premiere of her new movie, Grease. Escort is her co-star John Travolta.

RICHMOND, Va. — It's back to the farm for John Warner after his near miss at grabbing the Republican nomination for U.S. senator from Virginia in his first try at elective politics.

But it will be a welcome rest after more than seven years on the road, first as a federal official and in the last 18 months campaigning for the Senate with his wife, actress Elizabeth Taylor.

On Monday, Warner was cutting alfalfa on his northern Virginia farm, but he also was laying plans to do some fund-raising and hoping to enjoy a bit more time with his wife.

"We're a team in politics and everything we do," he said.

But Warner added that "we'll cut the tempo of travel down."

"I stopped to calculate that I've been travelling and campaigning for 7½ years, counting my time as secretary of the navy, as administrator of the bicentennial administration and the last 18 months as a candidate," he said.

In his campaign to succeed retiring Senator William Scott (Rep. Va.), Warner was edged out for the Republican senatorial nomination by Richard Obenshain, a former co-chairman of the Republican national committee.

Obenshain won with 1,579 votes — 38 more than he needed for the nomination.

At Warner's urging, the nomination was made unanimous, and at a Sunday reception he gave Obenshain a $500 contribution to show he was "putting my money where my mouth is."

FAMILY BOGGED DOWN

DODGEVILLE, Wis. — Having an extra mouth to feed at the Zoellick home won't be much of a problem. The big question is whether the bathroom can take it.

"Things get a little crowded around here sometimes, especially because we just have the one bathroom," Helen Zoellick, 41, said Monday, a day after giving birth to her 18th child.

The baby is Beth Candace Zoellick, one of 13 daughters and one of three Zoellick children born at home. A fourth was born in a dentist's office.

Mrs. Zoellick's husband, Herman, 50, had wanted the latest addition to the family to be born in a hospital.

But the mother said: "I would have never made it to the hospital, it came too fast."

Gleason Ordered to Trim

CHICAGO — Doctors are telling Jackie Gleason: "And away it's got to go."

What's got to go? Forty of The Great One's 235 pounds and his four-day-a-pack smoking habit.

The doctors told a news conference at Michael Reese Hospital on Monday that their patient is in satisfactory condition following a six-hour coronary-bypass operation Saturday and should be back to normal in two months. But they also added that the 62-year-old Gleason has to lose the extra weight and knock off the excess cigarettes.

Gleason's personal physician, Dr. Edward Newman, and attending physicians at the hospital said Gleason probably would have had a heart attack because blocked blood vessels had retarded the flow of oxygen to his heart.

They said Gleason's arteries were 80- to 90-per-cent clogged.

Gleason, 62, was strong enough after the operation to write on an alphabet board: "I want out now."

Complaining of chest pains, Gleason was admitted to the hospital more than a week ago. He checked out of the hospital, but returned about four hours later.

SHE WANTS TO TAKE CARTER ON UFO RIDE

LOS ANGELES — A U.S. woman who entered a British competition to produce a flying saucer said Monday she would display an interplanetary vehicle Jan. 3 and hopes to take President Jimmy Carter for a ride in it.

Sue McMahon said she has entered a competition launched by a British whisky firm to produce a flying saucer for a prize of $1.8 million.

The flying saucer had landed through the ceiling of her hotel room while she was spending a few days in Sacramento, the state capital, she said.

"It was manned by people who looked fuzzy, as though I was looking at them through a fuzzy television screen," she said.

The flying saucer took her to another planet, she said, and then brought her back through the ceiling before taking off again.

She said she intends to invite about 30 persons, including Carter, California Governor Edmund Brown and foreign scientists, to fly with her to another planet.

READ ANY GOOD LABELS LATELY?

A basic guide to the Who, What, Where, When and Why of Shopping Canadian.

Why should you Shop Canadian?

Every time you buy something made in Canada, you help keep a Canadian working. You help keep Canadian money inside Canada. You help to expand and strengthen Canada's economy.

When you think about it, you help yourself.

When should you Shop Canadian?

Whenever you're satisfied that the product or service you need is

(A) made or grown in Canada and

(B) of equal or better value and quality.

That's not just good advice... it's good sense.

What is made in Canada?

Just about everything you need to help you live the life you want.

As the saying goes, we have no bananas, but we do have Apples, Bandages, Cranes, Drills, Elevators, Furniture, Glassware, Holiday resorts, Insulation, Jewellery, Kitchen appliances, Lumber, Machinery, Newspapers, Office equipment, Potatoes, Quilts, Rope, Steel, Tires, Umbrellas, Vaccines, Wines, X-Ray equipment, Yarns, and Zippers.

Everything, in other words, from A to Z.

Who should Shop Canadian?

Every day, most of us have the choice. Whether we're buying groceries for the home or supplies for business, farm or industry.

If each of us added only $10 a week to Canadian made purchases, Canada would be over 10 billion dollars better off in just one year.

Who should Shop Canadian?

You should.

Where does it say Made in Canada?

Sometimes it doesn't. Sometimes a sign says "Produce of P.E.I." Or "B.C. Apples" or "Fabriqué au Quebec" or "Made in Manitoba" or "New Brunswick Sardines" or "Grown by Saskatchewan Farmers" or "A product of Alberta" or "Fresh from Newfoundland" or "Manufactured in Ontario" or "Nova Scotia Lobster."

The point is, if you take the trouble to find out, you can usually tell.

And, if it's made anywhere in the ten Provinces or the Territories, it is made in Canada.

MARKET BOOM 'ALREADY ON'

EDMONTON (CP) — Canada is in the early stages of a record stock-market boom which will set all-time stock price records, says Donald M. Cormie, president of Principal Group Ltd.

Cormie made the comment in an annual report, which shows the company had a modest $493,000 net operating income in 1977, compared with $317,000 in 1976 when extraordinary items brought net income to $2,449,000.

Retained earnings amounted to $433,000 compared with $327,000 in 1976.

JOHNSTON BANNED FOR LIFE FOR TAKING STIMULANTS

Scottish Star in Disgrace

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter) — The 1978 World Cup soccer finals, rocked by a doping scandal involving Scottish player Willie Johnston, moved back into playing action today amid hopes that the unhappy incident will be forgotten.

Johnston is being sent home, his international playing career at an end after he admitted taking two stimulants before Saturday's match against Peru, which Scotland lost 3-1.

The scandal—only the second occasion on which a player in the World Cup finals has been found taking drugs—surfaced when a random dope test on Johnston after the Peru match registered a positive result.

Even before the International Football Federation (FIFA) had time to consider the affair, Scottish Football Association secretary Ernie Walker announced that Johnston was being sent home as soon as possible and that he would never again play for Scotland.

FIFA may yet impose further sanctions on Johnston, but is not expected to meet to discuss the affair until next week.

Johnston was quoted in the London Daily Mirror as saying he was given the pills by his local British team's doctor and that other players take them in Britain.

Johnston told the paper he took two pills called Reactiva, and "other players take them in Britain."

He said: "I only take them when I am feeling low. Before I left home I asked at the club (West Bromwich Albion) if I could have some and I got a few from the doctor.

"The whole thing was that I had hay fever almost from the time we arrived. On Friday it was so bad I came close to calling off from the game. Then I felt better, but I took two of the pills in the dressing room before kick-off."

The paper quoted Johnston as saying the team members had been warned against drug-taking before the World Cup play began in Argentina "But I didn't think there was anything wrong."

While Johnston, 31, gets ready to pack his bags and bow out in disgrace from a tournament in which he was expected to be a major star, the second series of matches begins today with four games in Groups 1 and 2.

Reigning champion West Germany makes three changes from the team that struggled to a scoreless draw in the opening match against Poland for its second game against Mexico.

Dieter Mueller, top scorer in the West German league last season, and aggressive winger Karl-Heinz Rummingge come into a revamped 4-3-3 lineup in the hope of adding more punch to the listless German attack.

In other games, Poland was matched against Tunisia in Group Two and Italy against Hungary and Argentina against France in Group One.

On Wednesday, Austria plays Sweden and Brazil meets Spain in Group Three and Scotland plays Iran and The Netherlands goes against Peru in Group Four.

BANNED from playing for Scotland for life for taking stimulants prior to Saturday's World Cup soccer game with Peru, Willie Johnston takes his final walk to his hotel room while wearing his country's uniform for the final time. (AP wirephoto).

SNAFUS, or How Derek Saved The Day

The weekend in review; and if it was a tenuous start for the standardbreds at Sandown Park, Saturday, there was no effect whatsoever on the thoroughbreds at Exhibition Park. While the trots were doing about $78,000 here, the flats went over the million dollar mark at Ex-Park.

Not that a terrific response was expected for the first running of the standardbreds here in 22 years, but what did surprise was the low mutuel handle.

This was occasioned no doubt by the fact it became necessary to cancel show betting on the final three races; and also that the card was "running late" and into the supper hour. Island bettors are not conditioned to that sort of thing. But that should improve and so should the mutuel play, which is the life blood of the sport. And now it will be interesting to see how the evening program fits into the sports picture through the summer.

Obviously it won't be as hot. And isn't it peculiar, because last fall the punters were complaining about the cold and now suddenly it's too warm. Well, not really, but the beaches and the lakes obviously claimed their share of otherwise would-be fans at this inaugural.

Meanwhile, at Ex Park the Jawl brothers were toasting Smiley's Dream, who appears to be back on track now after an inauspicious beginning to this campaign. And for those who didn't recognize the name — Media Miss, who won the third race, is the successor to the retired Avalon Isle as the pride of the 18-member Fourth Estate Stable. So hear this: keep that name in mind.

In lacrosse, there is sadness because of the passing, much too soon, of Norm Kowalyk. He was only 46. General manager of the Shamrocks, Norm fought more battles for the Irish than most fans realize. He played the game hard as a player and he gave just as much as an executive. He will be missed. From here condolences to the family.

Up country, in Nanaimo town, the surge is on. And coach Ken Alexander, who predicted here a couple of weeks ago that the Timbermen plan to be a factor in the Western Lacrosse Association this year, is right on. The Timbermen haven't lost since they were here last, and took out Coquitlam Adanacs with ease in Saturday night's battle to move into a share of first place with the Shamrocks.

The important part of the victory perhaps was the fact that goalkeper Mac Maude gave up only five goals. That's the best display of the season; and the Timbermen, if they can get that kind of goalkeeping and defence the rest of the way, may be hard to head off. Firepower, they have plenty of. Defence is their basic need. Given that, look out.

Incidentally, a record is certain to be set when lacrosse, one of the demonstration sports, takes its bows at the Commonwealth Games in Edmonton (Aug. 3-12).

Western Lacrosse Association commissioner Roy Burton has returned from a weekend meeting in Edmonton to report that 19,900 of the 31,000 seats in Edmonton's new stadium have been claimed. Burton says the lacrosse games are certain to be sold out.

And even if they don't sell another ticket, 19,900 will be a record turnout for lacrosse anywhere.

The top two teams of the WLA as of June 17, not including results of the Nanaimo-Victoria game on that date, will represent the WLA in that demonstration.

Burton also says, contrary to rumors here and there, that motel and hotel accomodation is still available in Edmonton for the Games.

"Shakedown Day" at the track usually brings out the unusual and Saturday (and before) at Sandown was no different in its manner of Snafus.

It's no secret of course to those who were there that, besides some of the other problems, the race callers didn't enjoy one of their greatest days in their baptismal. No names, no pack drill, but they did make a couple of wrong calls. Right gang? Right.

Which is why one fellow cooling out in the tea room was rather annoyed. He heard the call of the race, figured he had the winner, ordered a round on the strength of a 9-1 shot romping home and headed downstairs to collect. Then came the correction over the PA. The announcer had the wrong winner. So did the bettor and the waiter already had delivered his order.

And also, when the harness people took over this year they decided that they would change the Women's near the track entrance to the Men's. But what they didn't know was that the Women's had been the Men's before it was the Women's. The Capital City Turf Club had made the switch the year before.

And it wasn't until director Derek Todd of the CCTC happened by that a rather serious problem was averted. When Derek saw the proposed change, he asked simply: Did you find the urinals? Naturally, when he got a blank look in reply, Derek did the decent thing. He uncovered them. They had been built over when it was the Women's and were no longer in use.

And now, to Derek, everybody who benefits should be eternally grateful.

Or, as Sandown Raceway general manager Jim Keeling Jr. said: "I like Derek."

Don't we all?

LARS ZETTERSTROEM ... one of the new Canucks

Swedish Players Join Canucks

Times News Services

Swedish defencemen Lars Lindgren and Lars Zetterstroem have signed National Hockey League contracts with Vancouver Canucks.

General manager Jake Milford Monday told a news conference, attended by the two players and their wives, that the agreements were multi-year, beginning next season.

"We've were lacking in size last season on defence," said Milford, "and these two will certainly help us."

Lindgren, 25, is a veteran of international play. The six-foot-one, 208-pounder has played 51 international games for the Swedish national team and was selected Sweden's top defenceman at the 1977 world tournament in Vienna.

Zetterstroem, 24, also is six-foot-one. He weighs 198 pounds and has played 47 international games for the Swedes.

Both played in the world championships last month in Prague—Sweden finished fourth after losing to Team Canada in the last game—and were scouted by Babe Pratt of the Canuck staff.

Lindgren played last season for MoDo of the Swedish first division, while Zetterstroem was with Farjestaden in the same division.

Vancouver has not gained a playoff berth in the Smythe Division the last two seasons.

Meanwhile, in New York, the sun was shining brightly and Phil Esposito was happy.

All the disappointments, the injuries, the lack of production of the previous season seemed to have disappeared for Esposito, captain of New York Rangers. He was looking forward to next season and the debut of Fred Shero as coach of the National Hockey League club.

"Fred did wonders with the (Philadelphia) Flyers," said Esposito of the man Madison Square Garden hired last week to revive the sagging Rangers—a last-place team in the Patrick Division the last three seasons. "That team won because of him.

"He handles the bench as well as anybody I've ever seen, and that includes Harry Sinden, who was the best coach I ever played for. Harry did a super job for us in Boston but I was really impressed with Shero.

Since Shero was hired last week by the Rangers, there has been talk that Esposito might be forced to relinquish his captaincy or perhaps even be dealt away because he does not fit the Shero mold.

Things Better At Harness Meet

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

Things could only get better on the second day of the 57-day harness racing meeting at Sandown Park, Monday.

And, after Saturday's bugged opening, they did.

- The races were run off with more dispatch — in 3½ hours compared to almost five on opening day.
- The prices were posted on the mutuel board much more quickly, and that pleased the patrons.
- The race caller was experienced and a definite improvement.
- The mutuel handle, although at a modest $47,954, was creditable in that it increased with each race on the program.
- For the purists with their love of close competition, there was a driving, three-horse finish in the ninth-race feature on the card and a five-horse cluster at the wire and another horse less than a length back in the first race.
- Some of the favored choices got down in front to please the form players.
- And, to keep the long-shot Louies happy, the exactor payoffs continued healthy with all in double figures with one, in the second, the biggest of the meeting to date.

"We had expected to have a problems on opening day," said general manager Jim Keeling, Jr.; "and maybe even a few more for the first few days," he added.

"But from now on, it can only get smoother. We'll run the races off more quickly and the tote problem (slow prices) has been worked out."

And apparently it has, for a racing oddity was produced in the sixth race, a one mile trot. The winner Holridge Dakota paid $26.60 to show. That's right. Only one show ticket was purchased. Holridge Dakota, driven by Mike Coliton, paid $33 on the win end and $5 to place. It is believed to be a new show price record for B.C.

The favored Hazels Yankee, a seven-year old brown gelding driven by Bob Boyd, won the feature in a three-horse photo with second-place Antique Adios and third-place Come Back Due. Hazels Yankee paid $5, $3.20 and $2.70.

It was Boyd's second win, the other coming on Eva Lily Cash ($14.20) in the seventh.

Kahoka Jeff, a 10-year old bay gelding, produced the highest win price of the meet in the second. The 42-1 shot paid $87.80 and combined with Shainey for that big exactor of $365.20, also a new high.

Troubador Hanover ($9.80) and Need Kash finished one, two for an $85.70 exactor in the first and Eva Lily Cash and Frosty Adios G.B. put together a $98.70 reward in the seventh.

Monday's caller was Dan Jukich of Vancouver. He handled the microphone at Cloverdale for a time this year.

Racing continues at Sandown, Wednesday, with post time at 5:30 p.m. Entries are on page??.

Salmonbellies May Be Tough

Victoria McDonalds will be looking to take it out on New Westminster Salmonbellies in tonight's Western Canada Major Junior Lacrosse League game at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

But that may be easier said than done.

McDonalds are coming off a 20-11 thrashing at the hands of Burnaby Cablevision at Burnaby, Sunday, and will be seeking to atone for that dismal showing.

Meanwhile, the second-place Salmonbellies are coming off a smasher, a 14-4 victory over Richmond Roadrunners Monday night in New Westminster and will be seeking to make up ground on the league-leading Cables.

The Salmonbellies broke open what had been a tight game with seven goals in the second period.

Mark Tuura scored four goals for New Westminster, which led 3-1 after one period and 10-2 after 40 minutes.

Bruce Turris and Terry Miller each scored twice for the winners.

IRISH GAME POSTPONED

The scheduled Western Lacrosse Association game between Victoria Shamrocks and Nanaimo Timbermen at Memorial Arena Wednesday has been postponed out of respect to general manager Norm Kowalyk of the Shamrocks, who died Friday.

WLA commissioner Roy Burton, in announcing the postponment, said the game could be played Friday.

Funeral services for Kowalyk, 46, will be held 1 p.m. Wednesday at St. Matthias Church.

One-Hit Win

Cathy Wilkinson was prevented from pitching her second no-hitter within a week but still managed come up with a one-hitter to lead Victoria Skylarks to a 5-0 shutout over Strawberry Vale Juniors in Victoria Senior Women's Softball League action Monday at Hyacinth Park.

Wilkinson, who pitched a no-hitter against Victoria Athletics last Tuesday, stuck out 10 batters and didn't allow a base on balls.

Tes Paterson spoiled Wilkinson's bid by smacking a single with one out in the fifth inning.

Sharleen Eden hit a double and a single and Maxine Stovel tagged a two-run double to spark the Skylark attack.

In the other game, Cathy Ross pitched a seven-hitter to lead MacDonald's Furniture to a 7-4 victory over Athletics.

At Sasncha Park, Sidney Hotel defeated Tsawout 8-2 in a Sidney Men's Association contest.

Roy Nipped at Wire

MUNROE, Wash. — Roy Smith was edged in a videotaped finish and had to settle for third place in the NACAR Northwest grand national auto race Sunday at Evergreen Speedway.

The veteran Victoria driver finished in what appeared to be a dead heat with Harry Jefferson of Yakima and Bob Fox of Bremerton but the videotape replay showed Jefferson first and Fox second in the 75-lap feature race.

Smith experienced handling problems with his 1974 Nova early in the race because it had been set up to run on the dirt track at Skagit Speedway in an International Drivers Trail series event Saturday. But, with the help of five red flags, Smith and his crew had the car competitive by the end of the race.

Two other Victoria drivers missed the feature after suffering in a mishap during the fast heat.

Rick O'Dell lost control of his 1977 Ventura and wiped out several cars while tearing the rear end off his own. One of the other cars involved was the 1974 Nova Roy Haslam had borrowed from George Stuart of Campbell River.

Haslam's 1978 Camaro is illegal for NASCAR events but he'll be driving it again when the IDT resumes June 17-18 at Evergreen.

Scholarship Route The Best One to Take

Even before Pat Fletcher offered his opinion, golf scholarships had been close to my heart. It wasn't difficult to steer Wayne Vollmer, Gary Smith, Jim Girard and a few others, whose names don't mean anything around here, into picking up scholarships from American colleges.

"In-State" boys have the edge at many, especially in California. Decent high school grades are important but, by and large, there are plenty of scholarships available . . . even for Canadians.

Fletcher, the last Canadian to win the Canadian Open, said last year that if another Canadian comes around to win our nation's most important golf championship, he will be one groomed in an American college. He noted that there are "good schools and bad schools" (from a standpoint of competition and coaching) but if he had his druthers, he would insist that the scholarship road be a compulsory one before any Canadian youngster could turn professional.

It's not the only road, but it is the best one.

My nationalism is every bit as intense as Gorde Hunter's but I say to heck with Canadian schools. Go south, if you want to be a golfer.

That's the way Scott Holroyd wants to go. The 18-year-old Gorge Vale member, Victoria's new intermediate champion and runnerup to Dave Mick in the City Amateur, is tentatively lined up to go to Arizona State.

He'll pay the expenses the first year, but if he makes the golf team, he'll play out the next three years on a scholarship.

Holroyd is making the move on his own. He's made his own inquiries and wrote his own letters of application.

Not much help from officialdom, and that annoys me.

Somewhere, somehow, someone in golf should be ready to help graduating high school golfers.

I doubt if any executive of the Royal Canadian or British Columbia Golf Associations has a directory of U.S. golf colleges. Handy thing. It lists the coaches, type of scholarships available, educational qualifications, whether out-of-state students are eligible, and etcetera, etcetera.

This is not meant as harsh criticism of the RCGA and the BCGA. The golfing bodies can not become actively involved in the scholarship trade, for a variety of reasons.

They should, however, have the information available.

The BCGA, I would suggest, could go one step further by designating, unofficially, one man to promote the scholarship rout. The "promotion" could start by reminding promising 14, 15 and 16-year-olds that good grades could be extremely beneficial for a great golf career.

At 17 and 18, the high school graduates should again be reminded in March or April that those months are scholarship-consideration time. By this time, most of next fall's better scholarships have been dished out verbally but not officially.

It is true that the interested, such as Holroyd, Aren Frederickson of Nanaimo (at Pan-American College in Texas) and Dick Zokol of Vancouver (Brigham Young), find their own way south.

My point is: someone in golf should be around to help the other good ones who could become interested but don't know how to go about it.

Four Vancouver-area golfers, no strangers to interprovincial competition, are out in front again in the trials for this year's women's team while Marg Todd of Victoria and Uplands' Joan Lawson are ready to retain their 1-2 position among the seniors.

Gail Moore, scoring successive 75s for a 150 total, leads the women's qualifiers after the first two rounds — played Saturday at Marine Drive and Sunday at Seymour.

Former team players Val White (73-78 — 151), Flo McFall (77-74 — 151) and Marilyn Palmer (76-77 — 153) were right behind. Colwood's Pat Derry, the only Island golfer among the 14 competing for berths, scored 80-81.

Next two qualifying rounds will be played Saturday at Glen Meadows and Sunday at Uplands. Two additional rounds will coincide with the qualiyfing test in the provincial tournament. Competitors will count only their four best scores in the six rounds.

As defending Canadian seniors champion, Mrs. Todd is automatically named to this year's team.

Mrs. Lawson, a team member in each of the past two years, topped the weekend qualifying with 80-77 — 157, a whopping 13 shots ahead of Anna May Taylor and Isobel Rudd of Vancouver. Colleen McCullough held fourth place with 82-92 — 174.

Gibson School Champ

Rick Gibson, a grade 11 student at Mt. Douglas, fired a final-round 72 Monday for a 144 total and a victory in the eighth annual British Columbia high school golf championship at Gorge Vale Golf Club.

The 36-hole event started Sunday and attracted entries from 21 schools.

Gibson, who beat runner-up Darryl James of Kamloops by four strokes, matched par each day to take two strokes off the tournament record of 146 set by Chris Ethier of Delta in 1972 at Peace Portal and tied by Mark Slavin of Eric Hamber in 1975 at 108-Mile Ranch.

After taking a bogey five on the fifth hole, Gibson birdied the sixth and finished the front nine at par 37. He birdied the par-three 14th and stayed one under until he carded a bogey on the par-four 18th.

Gibson's efforts helped Mt. Douglas win the first-flight shield and finish fourth overall at 653. Other members of the Mt. Doug squad were Peter Venning (159), Mark Calan (166) and Scott Weinberg (185).

Keith Westover of Vancouver's Magee was third with a 150 total and led his school to the team title. The four-man Magee squad had a 642 total, one shot ahead of the foursome from Oak Bay.

Lanny Sawchuck of Oak Bay was fifth individually with 154. Other members of the Oak Bay squad were Bill Chapman (161), Brian Rands (161) and Jim Elder (167).

Point Grey of Vancouver was third in the 19-team tournament with 657.

Following in order behind Point Grey were Killarney of Vancouver (659), Belmont (660), Stanley Humphries of Castlegar (661), Port Coquitlam (665) and North Kamloops (666).

Woodlands of Nanaimo, a junior high school, finished 12th over-all with 673 and won the second flight while Spencer of Victoria, another junior high entry, was 17th with 691

Vernon won the third flight.

Bio-dex

By Ken J. Michaels

Your computerized biorhythm

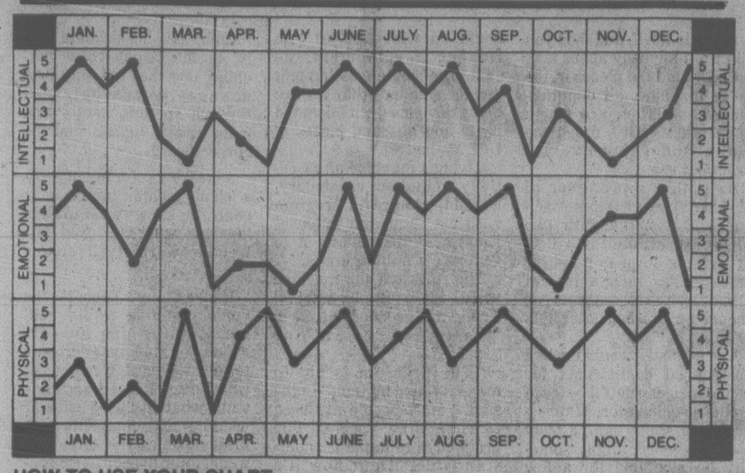
©BIODEX PRODUCTIONS 1978

Dist. by Toronto Sun Syndicate



HOW TO USE YOUR CHART:

Locate your month of birth. The dots on each graph highlight your biorhythm readouts. Check the scales on the left or right for your Intellectual, Emotional and Physical factors, from 1 to 5. Add these three numbers to obtain your Bio-dex. The Bio-dex is computed on average population age based on official Government statistics.

BIO-DEX READOUT:

0-5 Negative Cycle- You need fresh air and fresh surroundings. Take a short trip into the countryside.

6-10 Neutral Cycle- Caught in the middle again. Weigh the alternatives carefully, and don't look back.

11-15 Positive Cycle- Long ago, you made plans that didn't materialize. Try them again.

If good things seem to come too easily, guard them well and don't take them for granted. In time, their true worth will become apparent. A new friend, a raise and a promotion all at once can seem too exciting and a little scary. Your high cycle helps. Balance, weigh and plan while you are at your peak.

Energy Bugs Monitor Houses

ORLEANS, Ont. (CP) — Every time four local families open a door or a window, federal scientists will know about it.

And round-the-clock monitoring equipment will tell when they sneak the thermostat up a notch or two on a chilly winter morning or flick on the stove to boil the kettle.

Its all part of a project in this community, about 16 kilometres east of Ottawa, to test new ways to conserve energy in housing.

Business and government leaders gathered at the four homes Friday to snip a ribbon, officially starting the experiment which will last anywhere from two to five years.

Joint participants in the project are the Housing and Urban Development Association of Canada, a group representing home builders, and the National Research Council.

A spokesman for HUDAC said one home will be built to 1975 Ontario Building Code standards, providing a guage against which the others, with higher insulation and air-tightness standards, can be judged.

Solar heaters and heat pumps, akin to an air conditioner operating in reverse, will be installed in some of the homes.

"It's one of the most sophisticated and comprehensive testing programs anywhere," said Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie, who was on hand to help cut the ribbon. The others were HUDAC president William Small of Mississauga and Carl Crawford of the NRC.

HUDAC said the homes, which cost $300,000 in total, will be rented to four families, with the first moving in around July 1.

"A network of sensors placed on and in the research houses will automatically monitor such things as the temperature at which a family sets their thermostat and the frequency with which they open doors and windows," the association says.

It adds that the monitoring will be done without disturbing the occupants.

It hopes the data collected will allow them to prepare a computer program to help investigate changes in designing homes to save energy, such as its location on a lot and the exterior color.

ONE MILLION USE FILTERS

LOMBARD, Ill. (AP) — In 1977, production of filters for household water filtration systems passed the one-million mark, says the Water Quality Association.

"Production of three to five million units is expected in the years immediately ahead," said Douglas Oberhamer, executive director of the association.

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS®

...it tells you how

As nice weather draws folks outdoors, participation in summertime sports automatically rises. This means that once again millions of sports shoes and sneakers will start to wear down (and probably just when they're really beginning to feel broken in and comfy).

If this happens to you, wait! There may be some miles left in that athletic footwear. Just trot on over to the local hardware store and pick up an electric glue gun and some sticks of adhesive. Then simply wipe the dirt from each worn-down shoe sole, heat up a stick or two of glue and apply a smooth, even coat of the adhesive over the damaged area. (Take care, of course, to keep the glue's surface level with the surface of the sole.)

Let the built-up coating dry overnight, and you'll be able to scamper about in your favorite "good as new" shoes without the danger or ankle or knee problems caused by running on angled surfaces.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: I am enclosing a newspaper clipping that appeared in a section of the paper that very few teenagers read.

I think it should be in YOUR column — or maybe in the comics, where teenagers would be sure to see it.

If you agree with me, please reprint it. Thank you.

MRS. E. B. CLINGNER

DEAR MRS. C.: The piece appeared in the Cincinnati Enquirer, in William Raspberry's column. It was written by Karen Rak, who teaches English to students at the Centre Junior High School in Strongville, Ohio.

Ms. Rak composed a letter (ostensibly from an employer) designed to let her youthful job seekers see themselves as they are seen. With so many young people looking for jobs now, I think this piece deserves all the exposure it can get.

"DEAR KID: Today you came to me for a job. From the look of your shoulders as you walked out, I suspect you've been turned down before, and maybe you believe by now that kids your age can't find jobs.

"But I hired a teenager today. You saw him. What was so special about him? Not experience; neither of you had any. Attitude, son. A-T-T-I-T-U-D-E. He did his best to impress me. That is where he edged you out.

"He wasn't dressed like Easter Sunday, but then that wasn't necessary. His clothes were clean, and he had gotten a haircut. He filled out the application form neatly and completely. He did not ask to borrow a pen. He carried his Social Security card, had basic identification, and did not ask, 'What's a reference?'

"He didn't have two friends waiting for him by the pop machine. He didn't start to chew gum or smoke while interviewing. He didn't keep looking at his watch, giving me the impression that he had something more important to do.

"He took the time to find out how we 'operate' here, and what his day-to-day tasks would be. I think he'll keep his eyes open and work for me like he'd work for himself.

"He was willing to start at that point where I could afford to pay. Someday, perhaps, he'll get to the point where he'll have more authority over others and a better paycheque.

"You know, kid, men have always had to get a job like you get a girl: Case the situation, wear a clean shirt, and try to appear reasonably willing.

"Maybe jobs aren't as plentiful right now, but there are jobs. You may not believe it, but all around you employers are looking for young men and women smart enough to go after a job in the old-fashioned way.

"If you have even the vaguest idea of what I'm trying to say, let it show the next time you ask for a job. You will be head and shoulders above the rest.

"For both our sakes, get eager, will you? — THE BOSS"

DEAR ABBY: I just had a difference of opinion with my wife as to when it is proper for a man to start wearing white shoes.

I say that a man can start wearing white shoes on Easter Sunday. My wife insists that the well-dressed man does not wear white shoes until Memorial Day, or May 30.

Can you settle this for us?

J.A.

DEAR J.A.: My fashion experts tell me that in your part of the country, the white shoes don't come out of the closet until Memorial Day, or May 30.

'A WHOLE PERSON'
Stroke Victim Gets Voice

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Seven years ago, Charlotte Stern could speak five languages. Today she can hardly speak at all.

Two strokes robbed Mrs. Stern, 68, of the power of speech. They tangled the links between her brain and her tongue. Like several hundred thousand stroke victims each year, she seemed condemned to a life of silence.

But now, for a few days each week, Mrs. Stern has a new voice, a mechanical-sounding monotone that comes from a cartload of computer gadgetry assembled at the UCLA Neuropsychiatric Institute.

"It was terribly frustrating," said the robot voice. "The words are all there, but they won't come out."

The words were Mrs. Stern's.

With her right index finger she tapped on a typewriter-like keyboard.

"It makes me a whole person again," she typed and the words appeared on a small television screen. Then they went into a mini-computer, which converted them into electrical impulses.

Mrs. Stern's finger found another button and the impulses travelled to a voice synthesizer which converted them into sounds. An instant later, the voice worked.

"It makes me a whole person again."

Mrs. Stern tilted her head, index finger poised, as her mind searched for words. Then her finger travelled shakily over the keyboard, searching for the keys that give voice to her thoughts.

She went slowly at first, then in a rush to get the words out. Spaces were sometimes forgotten and the words ran together: "My mind works faster than my hands."

The machine says the words in a flat but understandable monotone, without a hint of the effort they contain.

"It's like learning a new leanguage," said Mrs. Stern, a one-time painter whose left side is partially paralysed. "If I take my time, I can say anything."

With the voice machine hooked into a telephone, she is back in contact with friends and relatives in other cities. With her gadgetry piled in a shopping cart and using batteries, she can visit the supermarket.

"A stroke can be a double disaster," said Dr. Kenneth M. Colby, who developed the one-of-a-kind device. "It's terrible in itself, and then you can't tell anybody about it."

Colby said the pieces of the voice machine, all commercially available, are worth about $10,000. It's much too bulky and expensive for practical use.

So Colby, a professor of psychiatry and computer science, is working with two graduate students to boil everything down to a simple unit smaller than a loaf of bread. He said a prototype should be finished later this year.

The next step would involve customized components for an inexpensive unit the size of a pocket calculator. If mass-produced, Colby said, a truly portable voice might someday be available for a few hundred dollars.

"Now all we have to do is come up with $300,000," to finance development, he said. The single existing unit and the smaller prototype are being developed with donated parts and bits and pieces of UCLA's budget.

Giving a machine an essentially unlimited vocabulary, he said, requires a program with "a thousand rules of English — that allows it to generate a million words."

The rules tell the machine when, for example, an "a" should be pronounced as in "pain" or "man" or "speak."

"The problem is not to make it sound human," Colby siad. "Most people are used to robot-like voices. The problem is to make it understandable. Right now it's about 96-per-cent intelligible."

Colby said his ultimate goal is an intelligent voice machine, one that not only pronounces words but sees through spelling errors and helps stroke victims find the correct word.

A stroke victim might have a clear mental image of a chair. He knows what it looks like and what it's used for. But the word itself eludes him.

Under Colby's concept, the voice machine would ask, possibly through an earphone, for hints that describe the elusive word. It might ask what letters it starts and ends with, what it's used with or what it sounds like. With such information, the machine would offer four or five possibilities from which the patient could choose.

Tourists Hit Silver Market

By ROBERT HERSHEY

LONDON — The tourist couple headed for Chancery Lane, headquarters of London's legal fraternity, entered a shabby building and were welcomed by a sign saying: "No Dogs or Photography Allowed."

They descended two flights underground, walked down a dingy corridor into a huge bank vault and started to survey the contents of dozens of windowless strongrooms.

They had come to the London Silver Vaults, home of the world's largest market for new and antique silver.

The Silver Vaults, where perhaps as much as $15 million of business is done each year, ranks as a major, though often overlooked, attraction for about 250,000 tourists who buy at retail.

"Our prices are significantly cheaper," said Sam Bulka, who heads the 30-member association of dealers. "Though we pay high rents we use our space to maximum advantage and as family businesses we don't have a lot of extra people."

The Silver Vaults were built in 1876 as strongrooms for storing legal documents and valuables. Later, the nearby Hatton Garden jewelry shops began using them for storing goods overnight.

Dealers gradually began trading silver items among themselves but it was only after the building above them was rebuilt after being bombed in World War II that they became a public market.

Customer Browses in London Silver Vaults

Although there are a few vaults for jewelry and one for china, almost all the business is in brightly polished silver-sterling, plated and Old Sheffield. And the descriptions of merchandise are careful indeed. After all, to fake sterling silver in Britain means incurring the same penalties as counterfeiting money.

From 25 to 35 percent of the price of each piece represents intrinsic silver content and Bulka is quick to argue that quality silver items are grossly undervalued.

"You're getting the value of top workmanship for a small fraction of other works of art," he said.

Relatively little foreign silver is sold here. That is because it must be appraised by the goldsmith's guild, unless it is proved to be 100 or more years old, thereby qualifying as an antique.

The array of goods ranges from plated toast racks and berry spoons for about $3 to choice, 12-piece cutlery service for $5,000 or more. The stock is easy for prospective customers to inspect but security is good. The Silver Vaults and nearby strongrooms containing other valuables have never had a break-in.

Aside from the esthetics, of course, there is the question of silver as an investment. One dealer said that he showed a profit of 500 to 600 percent on some things he had put away for himself 10 years ago. And Bulka said it was important to stay clear of low-cost items except as souvenirs. He recommended "a good solid piece of quality, Victorian plate."

The Canadian Wildlife Service has published a number of informative folders which describe some common land birds. Each folder carries a large picture of the bird it discusses on its front cover. You will find it fascinating to learn about many of the birds you see and eventually, will even be able to recognize some by their appearance or call.

The following folders are available: Killdeer, American Robin, Downy Woodpecker, Red-Breasted Nuthatch, Whippoorwill, Ruby-Throated Hummingbird, Gray Jay, Black-Capped Chickadee, Evening Grosbeak.

Each folder consists of 4 to 6 pages and describes the appearance of the individual bird, its migration, nesting and eating habits. It also points out the peculiarity of its call.

For instance, the most typical call of the evening grosbeak is a monosyllabic chirp which sounds very much like the chirp of a common house sparrow, but amplified. This bird can also produce different sounds to register fear, surprise, anger, pain, uncertainty, curiosity and alarm.

Any or all of these folders are available from: Information Division, Environment Canada, Wildlife Service, Ottawa, Ont. K1A 0H3.

Physical Exams Differ

your health

By L. L. Coleman, M.D.

My brother and I have yearly physical examinations. We go to different doctors. As you would expect, we compare notes. I'm always surprised when he tells me about all the tests he is given. I don't understand why his checkup takes so much longer and is so much more "complete" than mine. It seems to me that either his doctor is unnecessarily fussy or my doctor doesn't give me my money's worth. — Mr. H.D.

Dear Mr. D.:

Your confusion is understandable. Perhaps by introducing you to the complexities of a general medical examination you will understand how it can happen that your examination is so apparently different from that of your brother's.

A periodic physical examination is the ultimate in preventive medicine. The data that are accumulated can help to prevent or postpone some of the major threats to adult health and life. One acknowledged accomplishment of doctors is the ability to discriminately choose particular tests that are essential for each patient. With this approach, unnecessary tests can be eliminated and the cost of the examination markedly reduced.

The fact that both you and your brother are in good health is a testimonial to the judgment of your two doctors. Undoubtedly, your brother's needs are different from yours. His doctor apparently feels that more elaborate tests are necessary to completely clarify his physical status.

The number of tests is not necessarily indicative of the thoroughness of a general physical examination. Because so many people, like yourself, are confused about this, Dr. Isadore Rosenfeld, a distinguished New York cardiologist, has just written a book for the laymen which should clarify the total concept of a thorough physical checkup. It is called "The Complete Medical Exam" and is published by Simon and Schuster.

In this enlightening book, almost every test is thoroughly explained. In the process of explanation, readers can gain an excellent insight into why certain tests are necessary for some people and not for others. They will then be in a better position to openly discuss with their own doctors tests that are contemplated or omitted.

The world of the physician and the world of the patient are closely intertwined. Pulsating forces constantly flow from one to the other, creating a phenomenon of communication that is unique in our society. Dr. Rosenfeld's book reinforces this valuable relationship and should open horizons of better understanding between doctor and patient.

I must assume that your brother's doctor is not being "unnecessarily fussy" and that yor own doctor is surely giving you your "money's worth."

Carefree Women Help Out

Margaret Vey contributes her time as a Carefree volunteer

elizabeth forbes

You'll see them out Cadboro Bay way, every Thursday morning, whether the sun is shining or the skies are grey.

They are pushing handicapped people in wheelchairs; stopping now and then to talk to men and women walking their dogs; drawing those in their care into the conversations, getting them to laugh and respond to the best of their ability.

They are women volunteers, members of the Carefree Centre, based in Cadboro Bay United Church hall.

Why is this centre called Carefree?

Caroline Mothersell, one of the founders, says its because "we are not funded by any level of government, nor are we sponsored by any organization."

Margaret Vey, another of the ten or so volunteers who started the centre, eight years ago, adds "the church gives us the use of the hall, with light and heat. The women's association keeps us supplied with coffee, sugar and cream. Other than that our needs are met through voluntary donations, many of them from anonymous sources."

Both these dedicated women make it quite clear, the group never asks for donations.

However, it's surprising, they tell you, that if there is a need, a donation miraculously appears at the right moment.

It's an incredible feeling, Mrs. Vey says, to be empty handed one minute and have a small amount of money needed the next, and not know where it actually came from.

Fairy godmothers — or fathers — are also responsible for cookies, juice and milk that appear in the hall, from time to time.

All these happenings, they believe, prove "that the people of the Cadboro Bay area are interested in our work and in their own way, are backing us up."

In other words, "we're slowly and quietly becoming a sort of community project."

How did it start?

There was a Carefree Centre in Vancouver, based in Ryerson United Church, and Caroline Mothersell heard of it through her sister, who was a volunteer there.

She went to the mainland city to see how that centre was organized and how it functioned and returned determined to start one here.

Cadboro Bay United

If transportation is not available it is provided free, by the volunteers.

"Confined as they are, day after day, in institutions, many of them don't know how to socialize in any way," Mrs. Mothersell says.

"Therefore, one of our main aims as we work with Church was chosen because it offered ground floor accommodation for the centre and had doors wide enough for wheelchairs.

There is also easy access to the beach a few blocks away.

At that time there seemed to be almost a complete lack of help for mothers caring for retarded or badly handicapped children in their homes.

"So we started with the idea of giving relief for those mothers who never seemed to get a break from the constant 24-hour care required by these afflicted children," Mrs. Mothersell says.

Now, of course, conditions have changed. Day care centres and other forms of care have reduced the need to concentrate on children.

"This has allowed us to turn to providing free care each Thursday morning, for the retarded or physically handicapped of any age."

They come mainly to the Carefree Centre now from Glendale Hospital and from extended care in Gorge Road Hospital.

Among them are accident victims and people who cannot move and cannot speak. them, in the hall and out of doors, is to get them interested and if possible to involve them in what is going on."

It's a challenge," says Margaret Vey. "When we are all together the atmosphere is charged with love and expectation, and every small step forward is a personal victory to each one of the volunteers."

She also says it is definitely a two-way street. "In helping them we gain something it is very difficult to explain in words."

Today, the Carefree Centre has as many as 24 volunteers. They sign no contract, promise no stated number of hours.

Yet, you'll find them, each Thursday morning, ready and waiting to help.

Why? Because they believe they owe some part of their busy lives to those who need their help.

And why do they believe they owe those hours?

According to Caroline Mothersell, most of the volunteers have young people growing up in their own homes. She has six children and Margaret Vey has three.

"All our young are normal in every way," she explains. "That is the reason we feel we must help those less fortunate than ourselves."

Postscript — The Carefree Center is closed during the two school holiday months of July and August. The other ten months of the year, you'll find these dedicated women at the Cadboro Bay United Church Hall every Thursday morning.

THE SQUARE DANCER'S ONE-STOP PLACE TO SHOP

HAMILTON (CP) — Ross and Margaret Buckle cater strictly to a special breed of people who consider square dancing more than simply another form of entertainment.

To them, it's a way of life, a recipe for happiness.

The Buckles run a shop for square dancers. Customers go there for traditional gaily-colored tiny-waisted print dresses with tiered levels, scoop necks, ruffled hemlines and puffy sleeves, petti-pants, Western-style shirts with pearly-finish buckles, scarf or string ties and straight-cut slacks.

"We try to have everything that's available," Ross said. "Mind you, there are new things coming out all the time — different designs, different patterns. But we try to keep up with it."

The Buckles got into square dancing 10 years ago and became so involved they gradually wound up going at least three times a week.

They found that square dancers were a people unto themselves — almost a religion with unwritten rules, or an updated version of the 10 commandments.

They don't tolerate drunkenness or the presence of liquor under any circumstances. You shall be exuberant, but you shall act your age. Do not offend others by your high-flung legs and outflared skirts.

Also a credo: "You shall never forget that you were once a beginner. You shall bathe diligently that the sweet aroma of soap and shaving lotion may assail the nostrils of your associates, leaving the more earthly smells to the farmyard."

A square dancer never snubs any stranger in his midst, or leaves anyone sitting on the sidelines.

And although it may sound old-fashioned, the women are supposed to look like women, men like men.

"Dressing for the dance is half the fun," said Buckle.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	Dbl.

Opening lead: Ace of ♡.

After winning the opening lead with his ace of hearts, West led the queen of hearts to trick two. The "normal" play at this point would be to put up the king automatically — which East would trump. And if East now shifts to a diamond, the contract would be defeated, for West would eventually cash another heart trick and the diamond king.

But declarer did not put up the heart king at trick two. He played low from dummy, East discarding a club. A third heart lead was then made, East ruffing dummy's king. East led a diamond to trick four, declarer's ace winning the trick.

The trump king then picked up the outstanding trumps, after which a fourth heart was led, dummy ruffing. Declarer's fifth heart was now a winner; and after returning to his own hand via the club ace, declarer discarded dummy's remaining diamond on the established fifth heart. The rest of the tricks belonged to him.

How did declarer know enough not to put up the heart king on the second heart lead? Well, he knew when East followed suit to the first heart lead that the adverse hearts were divided no worse than 4-1 — and that his fifth heart had the potential of becoming established by ruffing a fourth heart. On the fifth heart, he could discard dummy's losing diamond (as he did).

By not putting up the heart king at trick two, declarer was sacrificing a potential overtick, which would have been the case if the outstanding hearts had been divided 3-2. But declarer was not interested in trying for an overtrick if, in so trying, he would be jeopardizing his game contract.

SOLUTIONS WEDNESDAY
GRID NO. 3

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Wednesday, June 7
By Sydney Omarr

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Be factual, not dull. Humor is important ingredient where success potential is concerned. Gemini, Sagittarius figure prominently — and so does the number 3. You gain accolade from one who pulls purse strings. Your self-esteem shoots upwards.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You move about, take journey, find out-of-way dining place, accept anecdote proffered by relative — and you learn what to accept and what to reject. Specifically, confusion is transformed into vision. You appreciate relative who inspires you — and you do something about it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Be ready for change, variety, intensified relationship, travel, gain and progress through written word. Yes, it will pay to be analytical. Know it and act accordingly. Libra and Sagittarius figure prominently — so does the number 5.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Lunar cycle high; judgment, intuition on target. Check clothing, appearance. State case firmly and with confidence. Yes, domestic adjustment is necessary and will prove beneficial. You receive accolade — and a gift.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Much occurs "in whispers" rather than shouts. There is general aura of restraint. Key is to work with material at hand, to see places and people as they exist, to avoid grandiose schemes. Yes, emotional responses are sharp, there could be some romantic disillusionment. But you survive and thrive!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accent on friends, hopes, wishes — you learn where priorities are, how you relate to business changes and to "special" member of opposite sex. Capricorn, Cancer persons figure prominently — so does the number 8. A commitment is made — it is "for real."

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Finish what you start, complete circle and cycle. Meaning will be clarified. Aries is in picture — accent on security, property rights, appraisals, learning where you stand, getting accurate financial statements.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Look ahead, perceive potential, submit manuscript or format. Creativity, fresh start, dealings with Leo, Aquarius individuals figure in scenario. Affair of heart gets off track, but this is temporary. Open lines of communication.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Money, technicalities, red tape get tied up in one ball of wax. Key is patience, keen observation. Hunch pays off — teacher shows the way. Emphasis on the occult, hidden values, financial procedures affecting partner or mate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You find ways of fulfilling obligations without having hands tide. Versatility, humor and popularity are featured. Gemini, Sagittarius figure in scenario. Permit others to reveal their feelings, plans. Play your own cards close to chest.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Steady pace is necessary; avoid extremes and get-rich-quick schemes. Another Aquarian, a Taurus and Scorpio figure prominently — and so does the number 14. Accent on dependents, special services, work and health. Keep diet resolutions.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Lunar aspect highlights speculation, changes involving children, adventure of discovery. Attraction, experience, fighting through maze of details, red tape — these are part of scenario. You gain by taking notes, getting thoughts, ideas on paper. Define terms and issues.

IF JUNE 7 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are inquisitive, a perfectionist, spiritual. You live two lives — one the public sees, the other private, secret, sacred part seldom exposed. Pisces, Virgo persons play key roles in your life. June could be your most significant month of 1978. You will be on firmer emotional-financial ground.

Tobacco: Third World Death Crop

LONDON (AP) — A charity group said Monday tobacco companies and governments in the developing Third World have teamed up to persuade millions of poor people that cigarettes can give them a brighter future.

War on Want, a London-based group that says it is waging an international fight against poverty and social injustice, released a 97-page booklet alleging: "Tobacco is becoming a death crop for Third World countries."

"With the support and encouragement of companies like British-American Tobacco — and sometimes, inexcusably, aid organizations as well — a hungry world is every year devoting some 10 million acres of valuable land, one billion man-days to growing the tobacco crop which is then ceremoniously burnt, at considerable risk to life," wrote Mike Muller, author of the booklet, Tobacco and the Third World: Tomorrow's Epidemic?

The group said smokers in poor countries are being sold cigarettes containing "twice the punch of cancer-causing tars as that of the rich world's cigarettes" even though they carry the same popular labels as brands sold in Britain, Europe and the United States. Cigarette packages in developing countries do not carry health warnings, Muller said, because the governments do not require them.

He said Third World governments, especially in Africa, encourage small farms to grow tobacco that can be exported for foreign exchange.

Muller quoted Zambia's rural development minister, Nephas Tembo, as saying: "Tobacco is Zambia's big hope."

In Tanzania, Muller said, the health department's medical services director, Dr. A. D. Chiduo, said: "Tanzania has no policy on smoking and health at the present and there are no plans to introduce one in the immediate future. Smoking-related diseases are not regarded as a matter for concern at the present time."

SOVIET ENVOY SNUB

TOKYO (AP) — The Soviet ambassador to China, Vasily Tolstikov, will be leaving Peking, China's official news agency Hsinhua reported Monday, but its brief dispatch gave no reason.

It said only that Vice-Premier Li Hsien-nien met in Peking Monday with Tolstikov, "the outgoing Soviet ambassador."

Tolstikov took over the Peking post Oct. 10, 1970, as the ideological dispute between Moscow and Peking that developed in the mid-1960s was growing in intensity.

Their strained relations became even more tense when China charged that Soviet troops crossed the frontier May 9 along the Ussuri River in northeastern China and shot and wounded a number of Chinese.

COLOMBIA VOTE CLOSE

BOGOTA (AP) — Julio Cesar Turbay Ayala, a former ambassador to Washington and candidate of the governing Liberal party, has been elected president in a contest that was too close to call until 95 per cent of the votes were tabulated.

In his first news conference, Turbay Ayala offered to have the votes recounted.

Ford Blasted Over TV Sex

CHICAGO (UPI) — The National Federation of Decency said today it will boycott Ford Motor Co. July 14 to protest Ford's sponsorship of violence, sex and profanity on television.

Rev. Donald Wildmon, executive director of the NFD, said Ford is the second-worst advertiser on prime-time TV and that the federation succeeded against the worst — Sears-Roebuck.

The NFD last month picketed Sears Tower in Chicago and Sears-Roebuck stores in 34 cities in opposition to Sears sponsorship of Charlie's Angels and Three's Company — two shows the organization said contained too much sex for public consumption. Sears announced the day of the protest that it would withdraw its sponsorship of the shows.

"We have won a major victory in our efforts against Sears," said the Rev. Donald Wildmon, executive director of the NFD. "Because of our effforts, Sears has taken a major step in cleaning up its TV advertising policy."

He said the Ford boycott would include letter-writing campaigns to Ford and the picketing of Ford outlets in 50 cities.

Don't believe what they tell you about immigration.

A lot of people have some pretty strange ideas about Canada's immigration law. And, as a result, a lot of people suffer from believing them.

The fact is, the most reliable information comes from us.

In other countries, we're in Canadian Government visa offices. Here at home, it's your Canada Immigration Centre.

If you know someone who'll have to pass through Canadian Immigration in the near future, you'd be doing them a favour by pointing them in our direction. Especially now that there's a new immigration law.

Now, the new law doesn't mean a lot of changes for the average immigrant or visitor.

Here, nevertheless, are a few things that might affect you or someone you know.

From now on, immigrants and those visitors who come here to work or study must make all immigration arrangements before arriving in Canada. No one may change his or her status while inside Canada.

Remember that money can't buy your way into Canada. All the help you need is free at any Canadian Government visa office or Canada Immigration Centre.

Canadian immigration officers do not discriminate on the grounds of colour, race or religion. Ever.

A new adjudication system gives greater protection to the civil rights of people involved in immigration proceedings. And deportation will no longer be the only possible penalty. There are now less drastic alternatives for minor infractions of immigration law.

The new law does not make immigration easier, but it does make it more predictable. If you need to know more, ask at a Canada Immigration Centre. If you know someone abroad who needs information, tell them to contact their Canadian Government visa office before they make a move. That way, they'll know exactly where they stand when they step off the plane.

GARDENING

Our Plants Need a Drink

These lines are being typed at 4 p.m. on one of the hot days last week. The official temperature in the thermometer screen is 30C, the relative humidity 43%, the wind has just changed from light NE to SW at 5 km/h, a sea breeze lightly cooler than the earlier land breeze.

Fully established trees and shrubs whose roots have penetrated deeply into the soil are still finding moisture for transpiration but the newcomers to the garden last fall and this spring have already shown discomfort.

The broadleaved evergreens and deciduous flowering shrubs yet to make deep roots, quickly indicated by their drooping leaves the need for water.

Their immediate requirement was a light misting over the foliage with water, and a repeat treatment frequently during the hottest part of the day.

Between these mistings the supply of water at the roots needed attention. Each plant required a gently trickling hose, or a canvas soaker, over the root area long enough to saturate the soil to eight or ten inches below the surface.

With only one hose at hand the best the gardener can do when several new additions require the same treatment at the same time, is to repeat the misting every two hours, and between times have the hose at the roots of one of the plants until the soil is saturated sufficiently for the roots to get moisture, then move to the next plant.

The small conifers so many gardeners call "little green shrubs" are the plants that really fool the gardener. They are damaged as soon as their roots are unable to find sufficient water to compensate the rapid loss from the foliage in periods of low humidity.

Unfortunately they have no broad leaf-blades to indicate their distress, the soft foliage or needles remaining green. Only an experienced nurseryman seems able to run his fingers over the foliage and detect the lack of turgidity.

The first indication of damage the gardener notices is the browning of tip foliage or sudden shedding of needles, but this may not become apparent for several months.

Conifers neglected during a warm spell in August when the family is on vacation may not show any serious browning until the next May, at which time the tree suddenly appears to die.

For plants recently added to a shrub bed or border, the canvas soaker is the best device for getting the water to the roots as quickly as possible without any wastage.

If a plastic soaker is used it should be turned upside down so that no water is thrown into the dry air and lost, and the tap should be adjusted to maintain a steady drip along its entire length, not strong jets that wash the soil off the surface roots and create puddles where no roots exist.

Serious and thoughtful gardeners give their plants the little care they need before rushing to the beach for a breath of cool air. When skies clear and temperatures rise we are able to go to a cool shady place and enjoy our cool drinks, but our plants are fixtures in the scorching sun and need us to bring them their drinks.

Sea Cadet Corps Steps Smartly on Gala Sixtieth

Lieut. Hector Renton does the honors at anniversary fete

Victoria's Rainbow Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps celebrated its 60th anniversary on the weekend with a homecoming on Saturday attended by 300, and a reception and annual inspection on Sunday.

More than 500 watched as the corps went through its paces on Sunday with Capt. Stan Riddell, commander of the Second Canadian Destroyer Squadron, as inspecting officer.

Under the command of Lt.-Cmdr. Bill Creighton, the young cadets displayed their prowess in seamanship, communications, parade work and other nautical skills.

CPO Allan McCambridge won the award for the most outstanding cadet in the corps, while the award for the best over-all cadet or petty officer went to CPO David Yates.

PO2 Marie Lacerte won both the award for academic excellence and the communications trophy. Another double winner was LC John Underhill who received the awards for best drsssed cadet and most improved cadet.

Other award winners were LC J.A. Knox, deportment and courtesy; LC Ben Denslow, most efficient able cadet and best sportsmanship qualities; PO2 Paddy Berube, most efficient leading cadet; OC W.D. Badgley, bandsmen showing most progress; PO1 Michael Payne, most proficient guardsman; AC Z.B. Gryzbowski, most outstanding junior cadet and cadet showing most progess in seamanship and navigation; PO Christopher Keays, most progress in practical seamanship and boatwork; AC Andy Martin, reliability and enthusiasm; AC Shelly Brown, most efficient junior female cadet, and AC I. Wiggs, most improved ordinary cadet.

Four cadets — LC John Robinson, AC R. Meikle, PO2 Tim Roberts and CPO2 David Cowper — won attendance awards.

The Cayuga division (the guard) won both the divisional sports and the Cock of the Walk awards.

During the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. T.S. Murray presented the corps with two tenor drums in memory of their son Glen Murray, a former cadet, who died June 4, 1976.

Also presented to the Victoria branch of the Navy League of Canada was a lifejacket from the cruiser Rainbow, Canada's first warship, after which the corps is named. The lifejacket was donated by Arthur Hall of 2710 Thorpe Place.

At the reception which followed in the gymnasium of Work Point Barracks, a special birthday cake was cut by Lieut. Hector Renton, who has served for 28 years with the corps.

Rainbow's band, which recently won the award for best band in British Columbia for the eighth consecutive year, was a highlight of the Saturday night get-together in CFB Esquimalt.

Among those attending were members of the band who toured Canada and Wales in 1927. Also attending were former officers and wrenettes of the Patricia Dufour Navy League Wrenette Corps.

Sex Charge Changes Tabled

OTTAWA (CP) — The Law Reform Commission of Canada has recommended the replacement of rape with a charge of "sexual assault," the repeal of incest, bestiality and buggery laws, and modification of "jailbait" provisions of the Criminal Code.

The proposed reform, outlined in a working paper made public Monday, would lead to repeal of most of the current prohibitions against sexual intercourse with 14-to-21 years olds.

Any sexual contact with those 14, female or male, would be prohibited. The present prohibition applies only to females.

The "jailbait" laws, covering 14- to 18-year-old females, would be repealed, along with the law against sexual relations with blood relatives—incest.

In their place, would be a new law prohibiting sexual contact with 14- to 18-year-olds by anyone in authority over them: parents, relatives, teachers, employers.

Underpinning the reforms as a general protection to males and females would be a law against "sexual assault."

Anyone who had "sexual contact"—touching the sexual organs of another—without the person's consent would be guilty of an offence.

The judge in sentencing would take into account the circumstances—whether there was vaginal, oral or anal penetration—and consequences of the assault.

The recommendations are made in a commission working paper and public comment is invited. After hearing such comment, the commission will make its report to Parliament on sexual offences.

The commission says its proposals are "broader and more exhaustive" than those set out in a bill that Justice Minister Ron Basford introduced in the Commons last month.

The commission's emphasis was on provisions that would punish sexual activity "when coerced, obtained fraudulently or induced in a situation of dependency."

The Basford bill, the commission says, concentrates on revising Criminal Code provisions on rape and sexual assault and leaving a confusion of others intact.

The commission suggests a "sexual assault" provision to account for any form of assault in this area, with the degree of assault to be taken into account in deciding upon sentencing. The Basford bill distinguishes between indecent assault—sexual penetration of any bodily orifice—and aggravated indecent asault—involving "severe physical or psychological damage."

Furthermore, the commission recommends steps to give both the alleged victims and offenders more protection against trial publicity.

It recommends as well that if the offence of rape is maintained, that the present exemption against marital rape no longer apply when the married couple are living apart.

It recommends repeal of the current prohibition of intercourse with women aged 14 to 16 years old. Adults engaging in such intercourse could be charged with contributing to juvenile delinquency or another Criminal Code offence.

"In view of the generally earlier maturation of girls than of boys, such conduct, while not to be encouraged in law, is conscientiously too difficult to maintain as a crime," the commission says.

"Such conduct, if it were to be regulated in law, would be better regulated by provincial child welfare laws according to the wisdom of the legislators of each province."

It said the current prohibition against seduction of 16- to 18-year-old women "of previously chaste character" no longer has a place in criminal law.

This was true as well of a law that makes it an offence for an adult male to seduce a woman under 21 with promises of marriage and a law that makes it an offence for a ship's captain to seduce a female passenger.

"These sections are rarely invoked and are often quoted as ridiculous examples of the criminal law.

"They assume a general sexual immaturity among women and also attributed to men the sole responsibility for making decisions."

The commission says a law against seduction of female employees under 21 is best left to labor legislation or referrals to human rights commissions.

It recommends repeal of a provision exempting males under 14 from prosecution for sexual offences, including rape, when they are charged before a juvenile court.

It recommends repeal of laws against seduction of stepdaughters and female guards.

These could be dealt with under the proposed "dependency" provision to protect 14- to 18-year-olds or under the "sexual assault" provision.

Buggery and gross indencency would also come under the heading of "sexual assault" and separate sections would no longer be necessary.

Bestiality, intercourse between a human and an animal, would no longer be a crime where committed in private. A charge of assault could be placed where one person coerced another into such an act.

Elk Lake Kennel Must Halt

A Saanich resident who has started installing a 16-run dog kennel in the Elk Lake area will be told to discontinue construction because the kennel operation could contravene various municipal bylaws, including the anti-noise bylaw.

The stop-work action was taken by Saanich council Monday night after a delegation of Oldfield Road residents presented a petition asking that the building permit granted to kennel operator Mrs. Josephine Shurb, 5720 Oldfield, be revoked.

Officials were also instructed to inform Shurb that as the venture appears to be commercial, she may be contravening the commercial licensing bylaw.

Meanwhile, staff have been asked to establish precisely what powers the municipality has to deny permission for the kennel in a rural residential area, and to recommend appropriate action.

Council's decision reversed an earlier letter from Mayor Mel Couvelier to petition organizer Frank White, 5730 Oldfield, in which the mayor said the municipality was powerless to halt the development because no bylaws are being violated.

By arbitrarily withholding approval Saanich could face a possible lawsuit, Couvelier noted.

But Ald. Ian Cass wasn't prepared to accept the view that Saanich could do nothing.

"We have a real problem here," he said.

"The whole neighborhood is going to be virtually destroyed in terms of peace and quiet, we have a whole galaxy of bylaws and, yes, we can do nothing. What a lot of nonsense."

He said council had pussyfooted around such problems too long and should come to grips with them.

"I think the idea of putting a dog kennel in that particular place is utterly and absolutely asinine."

White, on behalf of other Oldfield residents, claimed the kennel would devalue properties in the surrounding area and create a continuing noise problem. He also expressed concern that his well water could become contaminated.

In other business Monday night, council referred back to its bylaw enforcement committee a proposed zoning bylaw amendment which would prohibit unlicensed vehicles not in a garage or carport from being kept on residential property.

Police Strike Averted

A strike by Saanich policemen has been averted.

Members of the police union agreed at a special meeting Monday night to apply for binding arbitration to end their dispute with the police board over a new contract.

The decision was taken after Attorney-General Garde Gardom sent telegrams to both the union and board chairman Mayor Mel Couvelier earlier in the day asking them to consider arbitration under the terms of the Essential Services Disputes Act.

Gardom took the initiative as acting labor minister in the absence of Allan Williams.

Under the essential services legislation, both sides either can agree to an arbitrator or have one appointed for them by the government.

The union meeting had been called ostensibly to take a strike vote and had a record 90 per cent turnout.

Union president Cpl. Phil Jamieson said the decision to apply for arbitration was unanimous.

Liquor On Sale

The provincial liquor distribution branch has reduced the price of 45 items before delisting them for poor sales performance.

The products are mainly wines, liqueurs and spirits; and almost all are imports.

Price cuts range from 10 cents to $1.30.

Five gin brands are on the list, Bols Silver Top, Gibsons London Dry, Adams Silver Fizz, Seagrams Monogram and Seagrams King Arthur.

The LDB delists products that fail to meet sales quotas. The number of brands carried is limited by the amount of shelve space available in most outlets.

Pendragon Wins

Pendragon crossed the finish line at 4.36 a.m. today to win the first offshore race in the three-quarter ton five-race world championships, being sailed here this week.

Skippered by John MacLaurin of Los Angeles, she's designed by New Zealander Laurie Davidson and has Lowell North, Olympic gold winner and well-known sailmaker, as one of her crew.

Second was Bill Buchan's Sachem of Seattle — this year's Swiftsure winner — who was the first to round the outward mark at Clallam Bay, rounding Oliver Summers' Summer Star at 9.45 p.m. on Monday.

Ronald Lester and Joe Goldberg's Chocolate Chips of Michigan crossed the finish line at 5.23 a.m. to place third.

Next came James Smith's Rhapsody of Edmonds, Vladimir Playsic's Spearhead of Vancouver, E.A. Liebert's Clockwork Rocketship of Vancouver, Greg Oliver's Tapocketa of Victoria, David Everett's Gogama of Vancouver, Ronald Wolfson's Lobo of Lake Michigan, Finn Nielsen's Riotous Assembly of Maple Bay, and Ted Trenholme's Impatience of Victoria.

The race, originally scheduled to be 129 miles, was reduced to 74 miles because of lack of wind but during the night the westerlies picked up to more than 20 knots.

The two leaders, Pendragon and Sachem, both centreboard boats, hit logs during the night, and were hauled out for repairs today, Pendragon with damage to her centreboard casing while Sachem had rudder trouble.

Another boat, Mike White's Midnight Madness of Portland dropped out of the race at 5 p.m. Monday because she was becalmed and being set back by the tide while the rest of the 18-boat fleet were way ahead.

Saanich Council Moves To Limit Election Expenses

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Amid rumors of lavish campaign funding for pro-development candidates in the next municipal election, Saanich council Monday night instructed its solicitor to draft a bylaw which would limit election expenses of mayoral and aldermanic candidates.

The actual ceiling figures will be debated when the draft bylaw goes through committee and council stage, but meanwhile aldermen adopted a resolution which would set the maximum allowable expenditures in the six weeks prior to election day at $5,000 for mayoral candidates and $2,500 for aldermanic candidates.

The two figures were finally thrashed out in a compromise amendment after some members of council balked at the lower ceilings proposed by Ald. Robert Cameron, mover of the original motion.

He wanted the maximum figures set at $3,000 for mayoral and $1,500 for other candidates.

Cameron, who last year presented a similar resolution which narrowly failed to win endorsement from the Union of B.C. Municipalities, told council he had heard rumors that a certain lobby group was prepared to spend up to $20,000 per candidate in the November election.

Ald. John Mika said earlier in the debate there had been rumors of a pot of money for certain candidates in the last election, and added: "More talk has come to my ears that the pot will be very much bigger this fall."

Cameron told a reporter later that pro-development forces in the community would only need two of their candidates elected to reverse the present cautious attitude of council with regard to development.

"I'm sure they could easily find 20 developers prepared to throw $2,000 apiece into the pot for campaign spending," he said.

"But even if one developer footed the entire bill, he could recover that on his very first deal (a major rezoning steered through council)."

Municipal solicitor Doug Patterson said in a report to council that he doubted the municipality had the authority under the Municipal Act to adopt an election expenses bylaw which would curtail the personal freedom of the individual.

A similar opinion was expressed by Ald. Dave Paterson, who said if the legislation was intended to impart that right, it would have said so explicitly and not by possibly ambiguous inference.

Paterson said he was opposed to limiting expenses because that would give incumbent candidates an unfair advantage over those outsiders who were not so well known.

Ald. Ian Cass said he supported the intent of Cameron's resolution, but felt the impetus for change should come from the provincial government.

No one supported a Cass amendment that the ceilings be set at $10,000 and $4,000 respectively.

Cameron's resolution would limit to $250 the amount any candidate or person acting on his behalf would be able to receive from any one source.

It also says a candidate should be made to disclose the name of any individual or corporation contributing more than $100 in election expenses.

Dogs Restricted In Esquimalt

Dog-owners in Esquimalt will soon come under new rules approved Monday by council.

Ownership of dogs more than 10 weeks of age will be limited to three to a household instead of four per resident and owners of bitches in season will be required to keep them confined in order to improve dog control generally.

In other business, council refused to accede to a request from Gorge Vale Golf Club to take land from the agricultural reserve to allow the club to develop its clubhouse land and a parcel off Colville into townhouses.

A new clubhouse would be incorporated in the revised plan.

Prison Guard Killed

ROME (AP) — Two men and a woman shot and killed a prison guard in the northeastern city of Udine and a Rome magistrate filed murder and kidnapping charges against three more alleged members of the Red Brigades guerrilla band.

Police said no group claimed responsibility for the killing immediately, but it was assumed to be the work of the Red Brigades or another ultra-leftist terrorist organization.

The victim was Sgt. Antonio Santoro, 52, head of the guards in Udine prison. Police said the three killers approached him as he left home for the prison, shot him at close range and escaped in two cars.

Those accused today of helping six others kill former Premier Aldo Moro were Maria Pirri Ardizzone, Prospero Gallinari and Corradm Alunni.

Today's legal development came on the heels of charges laid Monday against six Moro case suspects, five of whom are in custody and a sixth is still at large.

More Jobs In City

The number of jobs available in Victoria is increasing despite pockets of disaster, Canada Manpower assistant manager Doug Yearwood said today.

He said about 1,500 jobs will be available through Canada Manpower this month, up from 600 during the winter months and a slight increase over the previous June.

The new jobs are mainly in the service and tourist industries, he said, and they are needed in view of recent troubles, including:

—The layoff of several thousand regional loggers, due to forest fire hazard;

—The loss of 96 jobs at James Island explosives plant;

—The layoff of 40 of 80 employees in an excavating firm.

Yearwood said these losses, while severe, will be more than covered by increased employment in other sectors.

Hiring is up for the tourist industry and for provincial government employment.

Yearwood said a survey of Victoria stores, conducted by Canada Manpower information director Dan Bowes, showed retail sales in May were up 10 per cent from the same month one year ago.

"This is higher than the rate of inflation and shows the strength of the local economy."

During May, Yarrows shipyard employed 425 people and in June the total is expected to be about the same.

Construction remains weak and unemployment has risen to almost 40 per cent, from 35 per cent one month ago, for those in the building trades.

Construction is expected to pick up once a labor contract is signed. Companies tend to avoid tendering until they know what the new labor rates will be.

Employment remains near capacity at local sawmills.

Victoria's Beer Stock Dwindles

Supplies of beer in Greater Victoria are dwindling as efforts continued to prevent a lockout of all B.C. brewery workers.

Representatives of the breweries and the Canadian Union of Brewery, Flour, Cereal, Soft-Drink, and Distillery Workers resumed informal meetings with a B.C. Labor Relations Board panel at 9 a.m. today. The meetings began Monday night.

The recently-formed Brewery Employers Labor Relations Association (BELRA) served 72-hour lockout notice Saturday on all Carling O'Keefe, Labatts and Molson's employees. Such a lockout could have begun as early as 11 a.m. today.

One Labatt's spokesman said the fact that the two sides are still meeting is encouraging and could mean negotiations will resume.

The union claims that the lockout notice is illegal because BELRA is not yet an accredited group under B.C. labor law.

The main issue in the dispute is the union's refusal to bargain jointly with the breweries.

About 260 Carling O'Keefe employees in Vancouver have been on strike for about two weeks.

Meanwhile, the threat of a brewery industry shutdown plus the hot weather has led to a run on beer at B.C. liquor stores.

A check with Greater Victoria stores today showed that all Canadian beer was sold out Monday and only a limited supply had come in today.

Most area pubs said they could last until Thursday or the weekend with their current supply of draught beer and some said they would stay open until some time next week selling bottled beer.

One pub, the Tally Ho, switched from selling Carling O'Keefe to Labatt's in order to remain open.

Calif. Tax-Cut Vote Looks Like Shoo-in

Times News Services

LOS ANGELES — Voters were turning out in heavy numbers today as pre-election polls pointed toward victory today for Proposition 13, the ballot initiative that would cut the average property tax bill by more than half.

Proposition 13 is strongly supported by homeowners, because it would slash the average annual property tax bill to $600 from $1,400.

In traditionally liberal San Francisco, some precincts asked for additional voting machines while in vote-heavy Los Angeles early balloting ran 2½ times heavier than during the last gubernatorial primary.

A victory for Proposition 13, would also mean enormous tax savings for some of California's biggest landowners, the public utilities. Three companies alone — Pacific Telephone, Pacific Gas and Electric and Southern California Edision — would get a combined tax cut of $280 million.

But because the tax cut would reduce property tax revenue for cities, counties and schools to $5 billion annually from $12 billion, the issue has been criticized by many labor and business leaders.

Among its opponents is Gov. Edmund Brown, running against token opposition in a nine-candidate Democratic governorship primary field. Brown has endorsed Proposition 8, a more-moderate tax-cut plan.

The initiative would limit annual property taxes to one per cent of market value. The average California homeowner's property currently is valued at $60,000, and annual property taxes now range from less than one per cent to almost three per cent.

The measure — an amendment to the state constitution — also would roll back assessments to 1975 figures and then would allow increases of no more than two per cent a year, except when property is sold.

If Propositions 8 and 13 are both approved, Proposition 13 would become effective on July 1.

Howard Jarvis, a 75-year-old tax crusader who led a drive that collected 1.5 million voters' signatures to put the initiative on the ballot, says the issue is more than just cutting taxes.

He said it is a message to politicians and bureaucrats who ignore pleas from voters for a limit on government programs and continue to increase spending and services.

One Super Lottery Proposed

REGINA (CP) — A proposal to conduct a single lottery in Canada and eliminate competition among lotteries will be discussed at a meeting of provincial ministers responsible for lotteries Wednesday and at a federal-provincial meeting Thursday, it was announced today.

Both meetings will be held here.

Ned Shillington, Saskatchewan's culture and youth minister, said there is concern about proliferation of the types of lotteries and the amount of money being spent on advertising, duplication of organization and the possible duplication of benefits.

With only one lottery, competition would be eliminated and there could be a mutually-established national and provincial purpose for lottery proceeds, Shillington said.

Quebec 'Golden Age' Vision

QUEBEC (CP) — A vision of a "golden age" for Quebec cultures was outlined in a white paper tabled today in the legislature by Camille Laurin, originator of last year's sweeping language legislation.

The paper says that federal-government interventions, backed by considerable resources, make it difficult to implement a coherent cultural policy here, and threaten to reduce Quebec's Franch culture to the level of a "provincialized" oddity.

Yet in the interests of coherence and the affirmation of an authentic, as opposed to a borrowed culture, the jurisdiction should be Quebec's alone.

"What do we expect of the Quebec of tomorrow?" the paper asks, and then responds: "That it take over all responsibility—all the means—to assure each Quebecer 'bread and books,' the vital material minimum and the vital cultural minimum.

"The dignity and welfare of Quebecers require a refusal to live in a ke[illegible] society, which was the ideal of 'viable federalism'."

"Viable federalism" was a slogan of the previous Liberal government of Quebec.

Financial, constitutional and social constraints make the project a long-term one, the paper acknowledges. Rather than outlining specific legislation, the document proposes broad policies to be discussed and implemented over the next two years.

"There is no point in sitting back while waiting for the province to become a country," the white paper says.

Two of the measures bound to raise hackles in Ottawa are a demand that the federal government turn over to Quebec all the parks, historical sites and other cultural artifacts it controls in the province, and Quebec's plans to pass a copyright law, traditionally a federal preserve.

The two-volume document of some 80,000 words—more of an artist's sketch of the future than a hard-edged blueprint—proposes a wealth of studies, campaigns of education and consultation.

Heat Forces Layoffs In Woods

Close to 2,000 loggers employed by two major forest companies on Vancouver Island have been laid off because of the hot, dry weather.

That number includes about 1,200 MacMillan Bloedel employees and roughly 600 workers and contractors employed by Crown Zellerbach.

B.C. Forest Products has not yet closed down any of its operations.

"We are down until further notice," a Crown Zellerbach spokesman said.

"The situation is going to have to change."

Forest companies are hopeful the hot spell will break by the weekend to permit woods operations to resume. Long-range forecasts, however, predict continuing sunny weather.

MacBlo has six divisions down — Shawnigan Lake, Chemainus, Northwest Bay, Menzies Bay, Kelsey Bay and Eve River.

Eight others, including the Queen Charlottes operation and the division at Stillwater, near Powell River, are operating on an early shift basis.

The employees report for work at 5 a.m., two hours earlier than usual.

Crown Zellerbach has closed its Ladysmith, Courtenay and Nitinat divisions and most of the Nanaimo Lakes operation.

The company still has some logging operations going north of Campbell River.

Pacific Logging has also closed its Sooke and Cowichan Lake logging operations, laying off about 150 men.

DERBY DAZE HIT HAINES

HAINES, Alaska (AP) — The American hosts of this community's annual salmon derby say it was one of the best ever — until their Canadian neighbors were tossed out.

The Canadians, who came from just across the border in the Yukon Territory and British Columbia, were ordered out of the derby as a result of the termination of a U.S.-Canadian fishing treaty.

"My God, they're our neighbors," said Dave Olerud, derby chairman. "The damage created internationally probably wasn't as serious as the damage created locally."

Wendy Hyde, a city hall spokesman, said "this is terrible for Haines since the Canadians make up most of the tourists in the city."

The U.S. Coast Guard said that from 150 to 200 Canadians had been participating until they were evicted on the last day of the event.

Olerud said the derby had been "fantastic this year. The fish were superior. The largest was 52 pounds." The winner got $1,000.

It's Friendly Fish War

Times News Services

The Canadian-U.S. fishing war is erupting not with a bang but a pfft.

As the dispute enters its second day today, neither government reports arresting any fishermen. No angry words have been exchanged. No meetings have been called to attempt to resolve the conflict.

Spokesmen for both countries said fishermen hoisted their nets and sailed for home hours before the Monday noon deadline after which U.S. and Canadian fishermen were forbidden to fish within each other's 200 miles of territorial waters, under threat of arrest.

Canadian fisheries spokesman in Vancouver Ian Todd said fisheries patrol boats found no U.S. fishboats in Canadian waters Monday.

"As far as I know, our area is free of American fishing vessels," Todd said.

The only incident in Canadian waters occurred when a patrol boat was called to assist an American trawler having difficulty with its fishing equipment.

A U.S. Coast Guard spokesman said there were no encounters with Canadian commercial vessels Monday.

Chief Petty Officer Paul Scotti of the 13th district Coast Guard in Seattle, Wash., said Canadian fishermen were showing a lot of sense.

Scotti said the Coast Guard is not deliberately searching for Canadian recreational fishermen.

"But should they be found and boarded, they will be subject to fines," he added.

The fishing war stems from each country's failure to take conservation measures requested by the other.

However, British Columbia fishermen will be able to remain in the halibut fishery off Alaska, the U.S. government said Monday.

The fishery is governed by the Convention for the Preservation of the Halibut Fishery in the Northern Pacific Ocean and the Bering Sea, the U.S. said in a note to the Canadian government tabled in the Commons Monday by

Major Reform the Price Of West Aid to Mobutu

PARIS (UPI) — The United States and four Western allies agreed at a meeting that ended early today to help Zaire President Mobutu Sese Seko stay in power only if he carries out sweeping political reforms, conference offirials said.

But the United States turned a cold shoulder to France's call for a new $1 billion aid fund for Africa and for public support for French-backed plans to set up a pan-African security force with Western equipment and training.

French, Belgian, British and West German officials attended the meeting along with U.S. Undersecretary David Newsom to determine what the West should do against upheavals in Africa which Western experts claim are often inspired by Soviet Russia and Cuba.

In an official communique ending the one-day meeting on Soviet and Cuban penetration of Africa, the five nations pledged to assure Zaire's integrity and economic recovery and to help other African countries to safeguard their security with Western help, thus leaving it to the Africans themselves to decide how they want to defend themselves.

Meanwhile, a fleet of U.S. transport jets poured hundreds of Moroccan troops into the heart of Zaire's Shaba province today, fulfilling part of the West's pledge to help Africa form its own internal security force.

Elderly Escape Fire

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 100 residents of a downtown hotel, most of them old-age pensioners, were evacuated early today when fire swept through a nearby automobile parts building.

Police said at least 20 residents were carried out, some because they were unable to walk and others because they did not realize they were in danger.

Sixteen of the more frail residents were taken to another hotel. The remainder returned to their rooms about two hours after the fire was first reported.

Police said none of the residents were injured.

There was no damage reported to the hotel, fire officials said, but the auto parts building was extensively damaged. Cause of the fire had not been determined.

British Sportsmen In Double Disgrace

By FRANK RUTTER
Times London Bureau

LONDON — British sportsmanship has suffered a double disgrace and neither cricket nor soccer can ever be the same again.

On the very day that a Scottish World Cup soccer player admitted taking pep pills the English cricket team won a test match by tactics of violence and intimidation.

Ironically Scotland failed dismally in its first World Cup match in Argentina last weekend, losing 3-1 to Peru. But the ultimate disgrace was the disclosure that Willie Johnston took fencamfamin, a stimulant drug, before the game. "I thought the whole team was on tranquilizers," commented an embittered Scot at home.

While some papers headlined "My Sham" stories about Johnston and his life ban from international soccer, others carried stories headlined "Test Sickener" about the cricket match between England and Pakistan which ended Monday.

Although they had a huge lead and two days in which to bowl out the Pakistan team, England chose to cut the game short by bowling at the batsman rather than the wickets.

The result was a quick win for England and a facial injury to Pakistani Iqbal Wasim who had to retire to have his lip stitched up.

He was struck by a bail deliberately bounced up off the pitch by Bob Willis.

Ironically the game had begun last week with another Pakistani, Sadiq Mohammed, wearing a crash helmet to protect himself from just such tactics. But Sadiq was not hit. The victim was a "tail ender" whose batting average was only three runs.

What made it worse was that England's captain, Michael Brearley, a sometime philosophy don, refused to apologize.

The Daily Express reported England's victory as being stained with Pakistan blood and former England bowler Jim Laker wrote that it was "as clear a case of intimidation as I have seen on a test ground."
